Pow Wow

A Sure Sign of Spring

There was something for everyone at the 1987 Pow Wow. Colorful posters, crepe paper streamers, the hard-to-resist stuffed animals and gold fish helped to transform the gym into a carnival-like atmosphere. Games, food, home-made candy, and flowers were a few of the attractions of the evening.

The Pow Wow, sponsored by the PTO, gave clubs and organizations around school the chance to work together, have fun, and make money at the same time. The PTO and the school groups shared the profits of the evening.

There were games of skill, games of luck, and games that were just plain fun. The Science Club's Fish Bowl booth, the FCA's Basketball Toss, and the Thespian's Jail were traditional favorites. The Mask & Wig's Fortune-telling booth and the Masoma's Cake Walk were new this year.

At the Plant booth, fellas could buy a rose or a carnation for their favorite gal while the adults were occupied with selecting flowers or tomato plants for spring planting.

The Pow Wow dance, which had been a popular attraction for many years, was canceled for lack of interest.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the king and queen. Raynel Berry, 1987 graduate, reigned as queen while Steve Cox, senior, was crowned king. "Being named Pow Wow queen was a nice way to end my years at Manual," beamed Raynel.

Keeping a sharp eye on her target, Krissy Elkins, junior, hopes she can win a prize by making a basket at the FCA's Basketball Toss.

Doing their best to attract the Pow Wow crowd to the Masoma Cake Walk are pledges Carol McFarland, Tammy Jeffers, Tina Hafer, and Diana Daugherty, seniors.

Reigning royally over the 1987 Pow Wow are King Steve Cox, senior, and Queen Raynel Berry, 1987 graduate.

Leaning forward and taking careful aim, 1987 graduate Bryon Wiley tries to "ring" a Coke.

Using the latest colors and styles, Art Club member Larry Walls, 1987 graduate, paints the face of a fellow student. Jeff LaFollette, sophomore, beckons to the next prospective customer.

Traditionally the center of attention at the Pow Wow, the Mask & wig Club jail is one of the busiest booths.

Pan American Games

A Unique Experience

For the athletes, the spectators, and the thousands of volunteers, the 1987 Pan American Games were a huge success and a memorable experience. "I think they were a real plus for Indianapolis," concluded Mr. Jack Brown, guidance director.

The long hours put in by the thousands of volunteers helped the games go off without any major incidents. From the long-range planning sessions to the 500 Festival Parade with a Pan Am theme, to the events themselves, Redskins were involved and played exciting roles.

Some volunteered for fun; others thought the experience would be great. "I enjoy meeting people of different nationalities. I like to get involved in events that are different and unique," commented Mrs. Esther Sangar, math teacher.

The volunteers' jobs included carrying flags, escorting winners, presenting awards, and being a village runner.

Although the games were very well-organized, there were a few problems that the volunteers encountered. The heat and the waiting were not appreciated. For Miss Laura Kneip, math teacher and volunteer, the worst ceremony was at the wrestling awards. "Puerto Rico won third place and we didn't have a Puerto Rican flag," she said.

The volunteers felt that they gained as much from this experience as they gave. "I got to communicate with people from other cultures. I would never have gotten involved if I wasn't asked. It was well worth the time and effort given," remarked Nikie Passios, junior.

A real crowd pleaser, Amigo, the mascot and symbol of the games, made numerous appearances for publicity and goodwill.

Part of the opening ceremonies featured these "visitors" from South America.

Picking up their attractive Pan Am uniforms are Carol McFarland, senior, and Mike Chitwood, junior.

Showing off their outfits for the float in the 500 Festival Parade are John Hurt, Bob Hestand, Rhonda Hawley, Erica Moore, Kristi Schwert, Shawn Dickinson, Mildred Fox, and Andy Aristegui.

Taking their places on the float prior to the 500 parade are seniors John Hurt and Kristi Schwert.

A Romantic Evening

It was truly a memorable evening. It was the Junior Prom and juniors had looked forward to this evening since they were freshmen. On May 19, 1987, after weeks of planning, juniors, dressed in tuxedos and long formal gowns, were ready for their night.

Earlier in the evening the occasion really began with frantic moments and shouts of "Where is my tie?" "Is my hair okay?" "How do I look?" and "Is my dress wrinkled?"

Anticipation filled the air. The ballroom at the Murat

Shrine had been decorated earlier that day. Balloons were in place. Tables were set. Stars with names of junior couples complemented the setting.

The deejay for the evening was Commander Tilford. The theme of the evening was "Always" by Atlantic Starr, and the prom colors were royal blue and silver.

When the evening came to an end, these juniors had their souvenirs, their flowers, and many pleasant, romantic memories of their Junior Prom.

The music of Commander Tilford provides the atmosphere for some romantic, slow dancing.

The Junior Prom's royal couple, Queen Audrey Wheeler and King Scott Davis, pose for their official portrait.

Vice-Principal Mr. Lou Caporale and his wife try a little dancing cheek-to-cheek at the prom.

A slow dance gives Everett Blackmon and Latasha Stevens a chance to share the closeness of the moment.

September Brings Changes

In August the football, volleyball, and cross country teams began their seasons. In September the doors of school were opened and students and staff began another school year.

As students entered the building on the first day of school, the building looked the same, but the attitude of the students was more positive. Speaking as a proud administrator, Principal Eugene Austin remarked, "I feel this year is the best turn out in ten years."

The new school year brought with it several changes. There were seventeen teachers who were new to the school. Mr. Ligon Drane became the new vice-principal.

CASPER, a computerized attendance program that was used on a trial basis last year, became a permanent program this year. A new football stadium was ready for home games when the season opened.

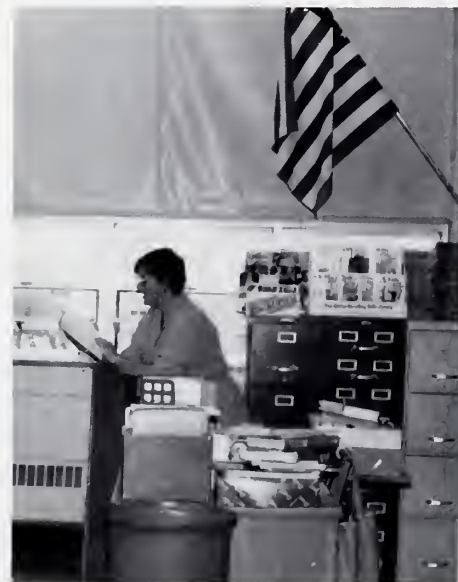

A new busing system began this year. Instead of using Metro buses, a fleet of yellow buses transported students to and from school.

The opening of school was a pleasant blend of the old and the new.

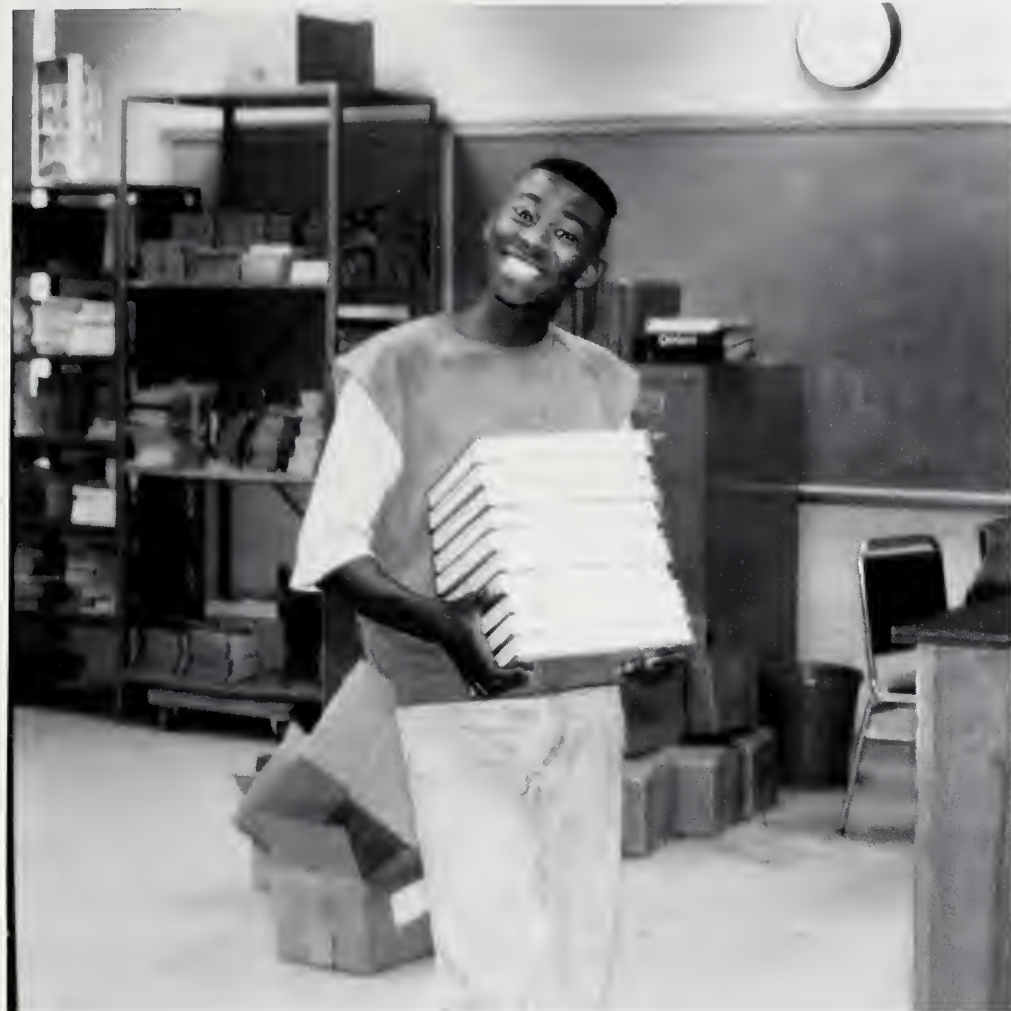

Carrying books from the bookstore to the classroom. Paul Miles, senior, Kenny Riggins, junior, and Ed Darden, senior, leisurely stroll down the hall.

With textbooks and notebooks in hand, sophomores Patti Floyd and Jennifer Spencer hurry to get to class on time.

Going over an assignment with her class, English teacher Mrs. Barbara Rice seems at home in her new surroundings.

The new busing system makes the parking lot area a busy place before school. Students meet to share the latest news with friends.

With students all in class, the hallways are deserted except for Jeff LaFollette, sophomore, who uses a pass to get to his locker.

Helping out in the bookstore, senior Michael Mansfield flashes a smile as he gets textbooks ready for students.

Having completed the opening of school routines, business teacher Mr. Randy Smith lectures to one of his classes.

Homecoming 1987

A Time to Celebrate

On a brisk October evening, Homecoming festivities got underway. It was an evening of celebration and the Redskins really had some things to celebrate.

It was perfect football weather, and the 'Skins were ready. Then the team scored its first touchdown, the fans went wild. The band played, the cheerleaders danced, and the crowd was on its feet.

Band member Ron Winkler, senior, expressed what many spectators were thinking. "Compared to last year, the spirit was very high. With the spirit so high, it made the players play harder and want to win even more."

Although the game was the main attraction for the evening, the half-time ceremony was also exciting and colorful. Seniors Steve Cox and Kristie

From the sidelines, team members shout words of encouragement to their teammates on the field.

Schwert were crowned king and queen.

When the Redskin team took the field after the half-time festivities, they did so with a newly-found sense of confidence. They had to hold the state-ranked Ritter Raiders for two more quarters. And hold them they did! As the final seconds ticked off the clock, the scoreboard said it all. The Redskins had shut out the Raiders 25-0.

Principal Eugene Austin had praise for the students. "I felt better this year than ever before. There was more red and white in the stands, and I was really proud of the way the student body handled themselves."

To show their Redskin spirit, Senior Darin Fishburn wears a red and white face and Shetona Barnett, sophomore, bubbled with enthusiasm.

Manual mascot Ishida Downey, junior, helps spur the team on to a Homecoming victory.

Dancing to the school song following a touchdown is cheerleader Shawna Hacker, sophomore.

Honored guests Dr. James Adams, IPS superintendent, Donald Payton, IPS School Board member, and Wayne Schmidt, architect, participate in the ribbon-cutting ceremony at the dedication of the football field.

Homecoming candidates: Bob Hestand, Scott Davis, Chet Daulton, Melion Carroll, King Steve Cox, Queen Kristie Schwert, Audrey Wheeler, Vickie Unversaw, Melissa Light, and Valerie Lewis.

Spirit Week

Proud to be a Redskin

Traditionally the week preceding the Homecoming football game has been designated School Spirit Week. For the entire week, the students and the faculty were involved in many activities that gave them a chance to show that they were "proud to be a Redskin."

Students were encouraged to decorate the building with banners, streamers, balloons, and posters. The seniors were responsible for the cafeteria; juniors decorated the third floor; sophomores added their special touch to the second floor, and freshmen were given the first floor.

The special dress up days were really popular with both the students and the staff. Wednesday was button day. Students wore as many spirit buttons as they could. Thursday was football-cheerleader day. The guys dressed up as cheerleaders and the gals became football players for a day. Students were especially happy when they saw their teachers dressed for the spirit of the day.

On Thursday, seventh-period classes were dismissed early so that students could attend a pep session. This was the first pep session during the school day in four years. Most students agreed that this pep session really helped to bring the school together.

This togetherness was particularly important since many students were still trying to come to grips with the tragic deaths of two classmates and the serious injury to four others.

Though Spirit Week officially ended on Friday, Redskin pride was experiencing a rebirth.

Firing up the crowd at the Spirit Week pep session is mascot Ishida Downey, junior.

Showing pride in their class as well as their school are seniors Joe Burgess, Ryan Booth and Darryl Whitlow.

Showing her school spirit, English teacher Miss Dorothy Powell becomes a "football player" for the day.

On football player-cheerleader day, math teachers Mrs. Karen Busch and Mr. Richard Flis show off their school spirit.

At the Spirit Week pep session, the students and the faculty really got fired up.

Trying to separate the red and white balloons for the homecoming game are seniors Lisa Johnson and Tammy Jeffers.

With all her materials surrounding her, Nicole Riley, sophomore, arrives early to decorate the halls.

On button day, senior Ron Winkler shows off his collection for Ed Lyster and Tracy Shrum, juniors.

As part of the Partners in Education program, seniors Robert Hestand and Erica Moore ride the Eli Lilly float in the 500 Festival Parade.

Making Shakespeare's plays come to life for students, actors Bernie Killian and Elizabeth Ware perform a scene from "Taming of the Shrew."

Guest speaker at the Academic Awards Program, Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut pauses to chat with Mr. Robert Bales of Eli Lilly and Mrs. Sarah Bogard.

Manual-Eli Lilly Partnership Grows

When Manual and Eli Lilly established a partnership in the Partners in Education program, great things happened for Manual students. This partnership, one of the most successful in the country, has continued to grow each year. Manual students have reaped the benefits of this growth.

Mrs. Sarah Bogard, Manual home economics teacher, and Mr. Robert Bales, Eli Lilly and Company representative, worked together to provide a variety of enrichment programs for students.

On October 26, the Histlish class buried a time capsule. The eleven-gallon air tight barrel, which contained more than thirty items representing the 1980's, was donated by Eli Lilly and Company. Mr. Robert Bales was one of the honored guests at the burial ceremony. The capsule was buried to celebrate the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

On November 5, Eli Lilly sent their bus and paid for students in Mrs. Kim McFall's and Mrs. Molly Bishop's citizenship classes to visit the Conner Prairie 1836 Village. They had studied about colonial America and then got to experience what it was really like.

Eli Lilly was also helpful in exposing students to fine arts programs. Two Shakespearean actors came to school to present excerpts from Shakespeare's plays. English classes enjoyed these performances.

In January students in science classes had the chance to benefit from this partnership.

Dr. Bruce Peterson of Eli Lilly presented a program to encourage all students to enroll and become interested in scientific research.

Again this year, the program "What DOES a scientist do?" was presented. Five Eli Lilly volunteers brought equipment to the Media Center and helped physics students demonstrate and explain how four experiments worked.

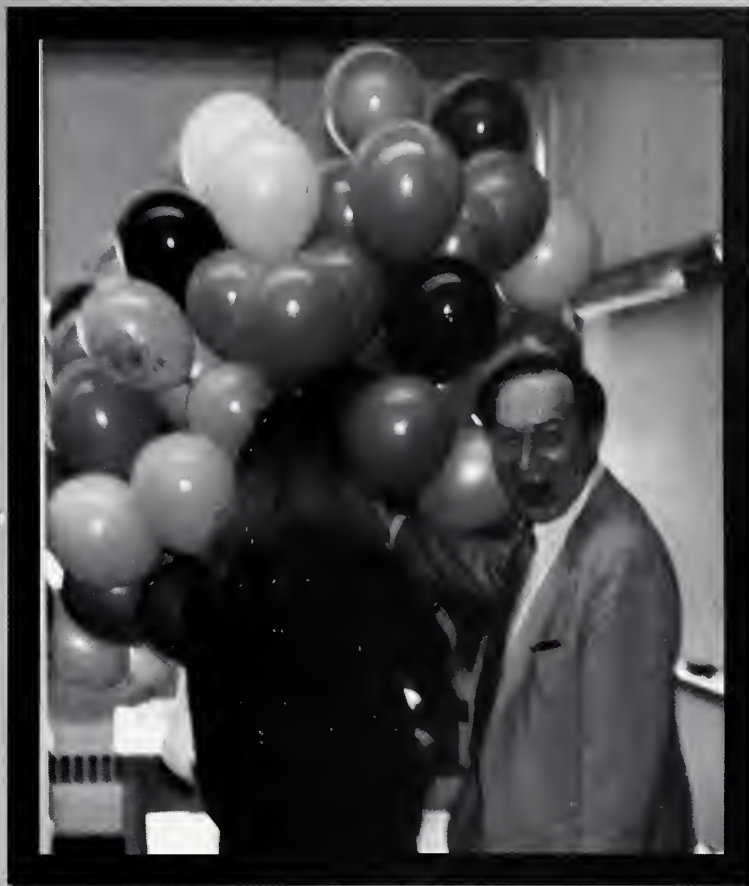

Students in citizenship classes enjoy the Lilly-sponsored visit to the Conner Prairie 1836 Village.

Dr. Bruce Peterson of Eli Lilly talks to science students about scientific research.

Physics students Melion Carroll, Ken Jones, and Jimmy Newson, seniors, take part in the "What DOES a scientist do?" program.

Loaded with mementos of 1987 and sealed to preserve the contents, the time capsule begins its 26-year burial.

With shovel in hand, Chris Messer, junior, takes his turn at covering the capsule with dirt.

Prior to the burial, Histlish teacher Mrs. Marilyn Dever explains the project to honored guests.

Recording the occasion are Mrs. Mary Rabourn, Media Center head and Mr. Jerry Cosby of the Spotlight.

Histlish Class: Row one: Julie Taylor, Shari Burgett, Amy Grider, K-C McCombs, Amy Bane, Jenni Timbs, Michelle Taylor, Carrie Groce, Principal Eugene Austin, Eli Lilly Representative Robert Bales, Mrs. Sarah Bogard. New Vocational Classes

The Industrial Arts department, under the leadership of Mr. Larry Helphenstine, provided a variety of classes for students. This department was in the process of changing to more technological courses to give students greater opportunities in the job market after high school. Computerized equipment was a part of the new look.

Two teachers were added to the department this year. Mr. Dan Chapin was the transportation teacher and Mr. Millard Qualls taught vocational electronics.

Some of the more traditional classes in this department included mechanical drawing, architectural drafting, construction, power mechanics, blueprint reading, graphic arts, and electricity.

There were two vocational shops. Vocational Auto Mechanics was taught by Mr. John Roberts and Vocational Electronics was taught by Mr. Qualls. A new Hunter computerized digital four-wheel alignment unit and rack were purchased for the Vocational Auto Mechanics class. Mr. Roberts proudly remarked, "Manual is one of only two schools to have this equipment."

Mr. John Fox was the ICT Coordinator and graphic arts instructor. Students in the ICT vocational program received high school credits for their jobs in the community.

Students enrolled in Industrial Arts classes received skilled training in printing, construction skills, welding, metals, electronics, and drafting. Such skills helped prepare the students for the world of the future.

Working together on a printing project are sophomores Jermaine Richards, Roland Terrell, Cindy Crabtree, and Renee Shipley.

Using strength and skill, junior Bob Gates and senior Mike Simpson take a tire off the rim while junior Thomas Petty gives some helpful advice.

With concentration and precision, senior Brian McKenzie does the detail work on his project.

Working independently on a project in electricity is Chuck Brown, freshman.

Reading and following directions exactly, junior Charles Bredl works on an assignment in electricity.

Making sure the cuts are made exactly where they should be, junior Keith Wise works slowly and carefully.

Meeting Students' Needs

The Business Education department was one of seven departments to get a new department head this year. Mrs. Janet Weaver, who had been department head at Marshall High School before its closing, came to Manual in the same position.

The Business Education department offered a variety of classes to meet the students' needs. In these classes the students learned and used new skills that would help them in office careers.

To prepare students to enter the business world of the future, computers and word processors were used extensively. "Today's offices use word processors. Students who can use word processors will find many job opportunities in the business world," explained Mrs. Joyce Cook, business teacher.

Several vocational programs were offered by the department. Miss Barbara Boeldt served as coordinator of the COE program and Mr. Randy Smith was coordinator for Marketing Education, better known as ME. In these programs students spent part of their day in class and the other part on the job.

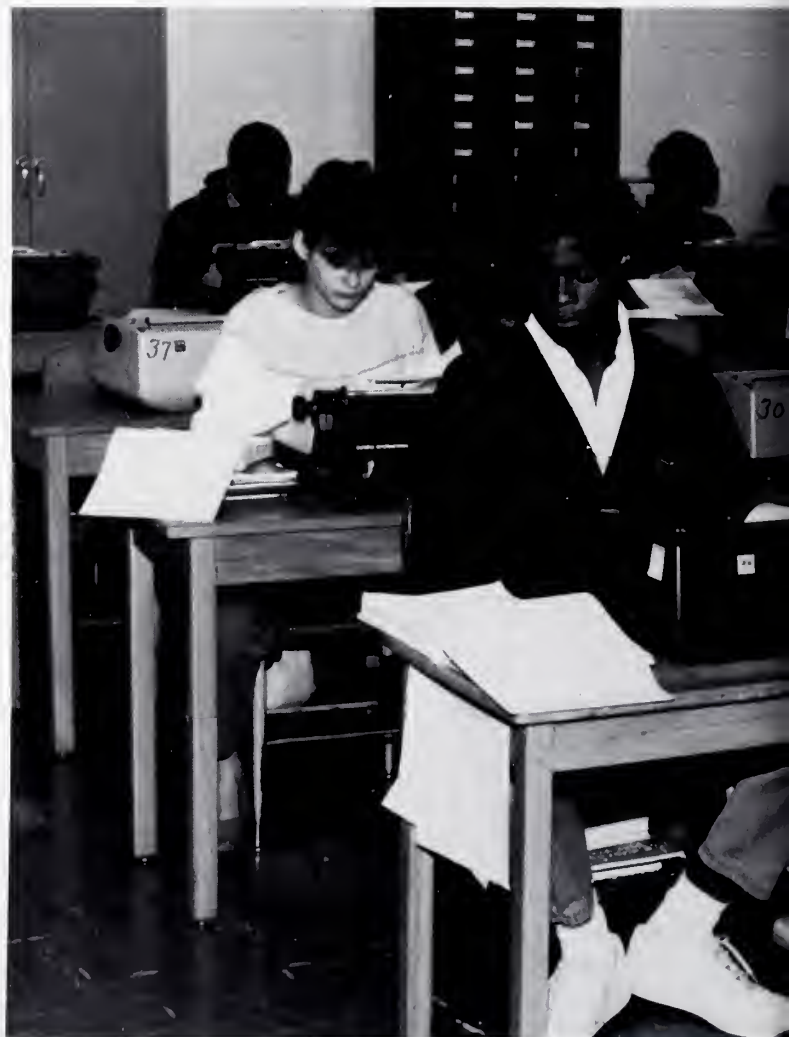

Most of the COE students worked in local offices or businesses, using what they learned in the classroom in a real-life situation. These students received pay for their work as well as school credit.

Students in the ME program also held jobs in the community for both pay and credit. Many of them had jobs in retail.

Accounting teacher Mr. Roy Calder gives some individual help to junior Nita Bartlett.

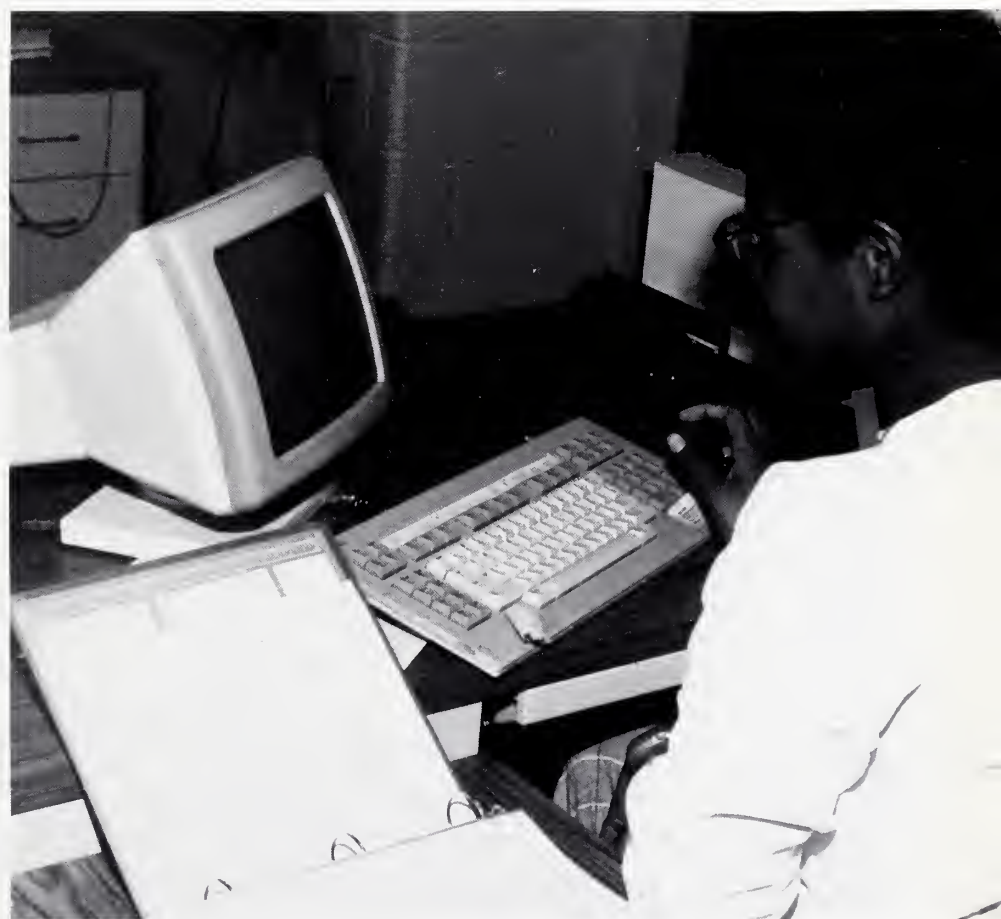

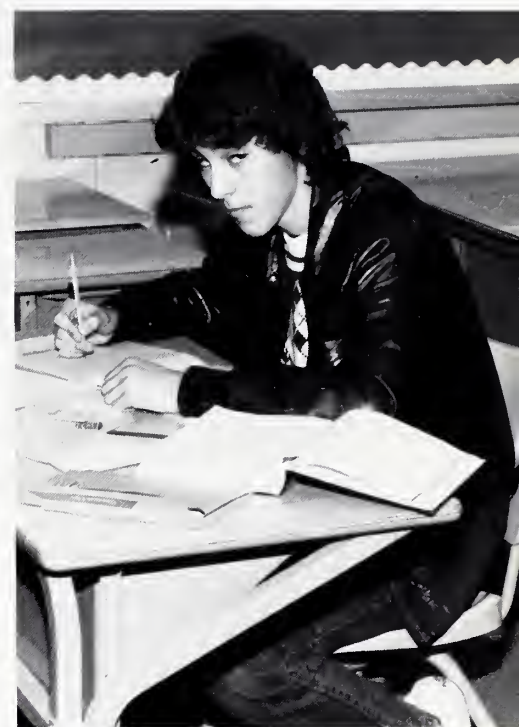

While reading an advanced typing assignment, Kim Warriner, senior, ponders her next move.

Marketing coordinator Mr. Randy Smith shares a good laugh with the seniors in his D.E. Related class.

In accounting class senior Mike Baise works to complete his assignment.

Sophomores Alina Fleshman, Mario Cook, and Crystal Patterson keep their eyes on their material and not on the keys.

Working at one of the many computers in the Business Education department is junior Hope Davis.

Creative Skills

The Home Economics department taught a variety of interesting skills. Regular classes included Foods, Clothing, Needleart, and Grooming. Nutrition for the Athlete was the mini-class. Mrs. Frances Benson was the department head.

The foods classes were not "for girls only;" more male students enrolled in foods to learn about the joys of cooking.

Students in clothing classes kept their sewing machines humming and turned out attractive clothing and other unusual projects.

Projects from the needleart classes were displayed at the Education Center and at the Gift and Hobby Show.

So that the seam will be perfectly straight, senior Tammy McHenry keeps her eye on the needle.

In needleart class, Toni Jesse works on a needlepoint project.

Junior Davina Brown looks on as Mrs. Sarah Bogard gives a pointer to Rancee Florence in Needleart class.

Showing her students the correct way to slice a loaf of hot bread is Mrs. Helen Weeden.

Sophomore Yolanda Vaughn carefully pins the binding to a quilt she is making.

Junior Damonica Thompson waits as Consuela Coleman finishes sewing a seam.

These students in Foods class are ready to dine on the food they prepared.

Art Students Compete

Elective classes were taken by every student this year. The Art Department offered cartooning, craft design, ceramics, and basic art.

These classes allowed students to express their individuality. In Mrs. Terry Clark's ceramics class, students got hands-on training with clay by making cylinders, masks, and other interesting pieces. In Mr. Robert Crawford's cartooning class, students learned the art of drawing satire.

In a more relaxed atmosphere, students had the opportunity to develop their artistic talents and receive recognition for their efforts. Under the direction of Mrs. Kay Clay, new head of the department, students were encouraged to enter their work in several competitions. Two students' pieces were reproduced in the I.P.S. Info, a system-wide newsletter. A number of students submitted entries in the Indiana Scholastic Art Competition, sponsored jointly by L.S. Ayres and the Indianapolis Star.

Working on an assignment using ceramic slab construction are William Brickley, junior, and Jerry Luna, sophomore.

At the potter's wheel, sophomore Leandra Averitte molds and shapes a piece of clay.

At the easel, junior Wayne Elsey works on a still-life painting.

As Tracy Bernard, junior, works on a coil construction project, freshman Jennifer Hurt offers some friendly suggestions.

Academic Opportunities

The English department under the leadership of Mrs. Toni Hammer, department head, offered students eight semesters of required English, Histlish, Humanities, and speech.

The Humanities and Histlish classes took several field trips. They saw a performance of the award-winning play "Inherit the Wind." the Humanities class spent one Saturday touring many attractions in Chicago.

The new I-STEP testing program brought special tutor Shelly Bradford to Manual to work with freshmen who needed remedial work to pass the competency test.

Mr. Dwight Shaw came from Arlington to be the new head of the Social Studies department. For the first time the DAR Good Citizen Award was determined after a round of competitive speeches by candidates Robert Hestand, Tina Hafer, and Julie Gilvin. Robert Hes-tand was declared the winner based on a vote of fellow seniors.

One highlight of the year was the burial of a time capsule by the Histlish class. Histlish, a class for juniors, is a combination of the two required classes — English and U.S. History.

Three foreign languages were taught at Manual — Spanish, French, and German. Mr. David Phillips was head of that department. Students studied both the language and the culture of the country. A special language lab gave students a chance to perfect their communication skills by using special earphones.

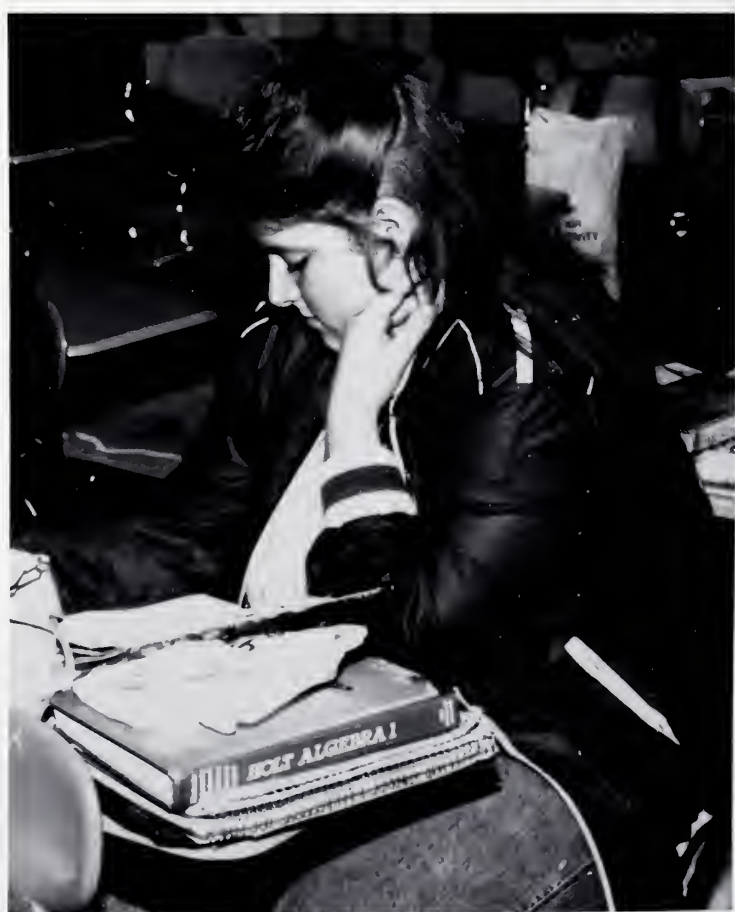

The academic classes in these three departments provided both a basic education and enrichment opportunities for students.

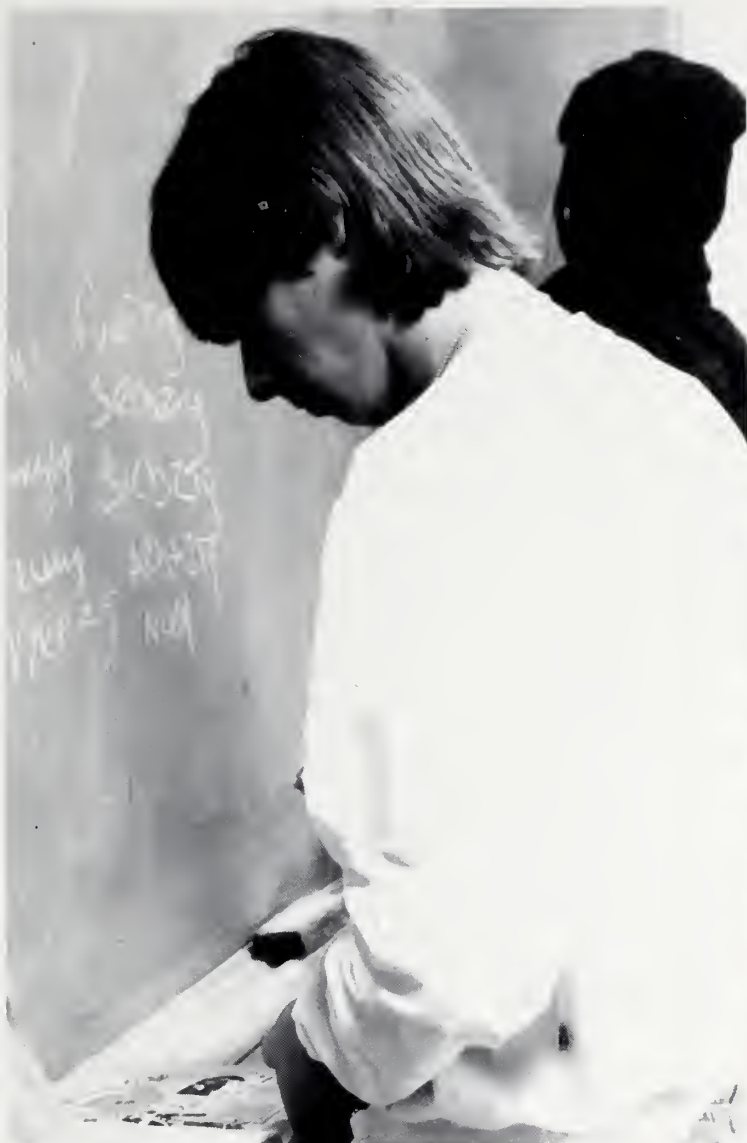

Using earphones in the language lab, junior Amy Striggo listens to improve her mastery of French.

In his senior government class, Mr. Homer Travelstead holds the interest of his students.

In Spanish class, Sonja Yunt, sophomore, reviews the textbook material in preparation for a test.

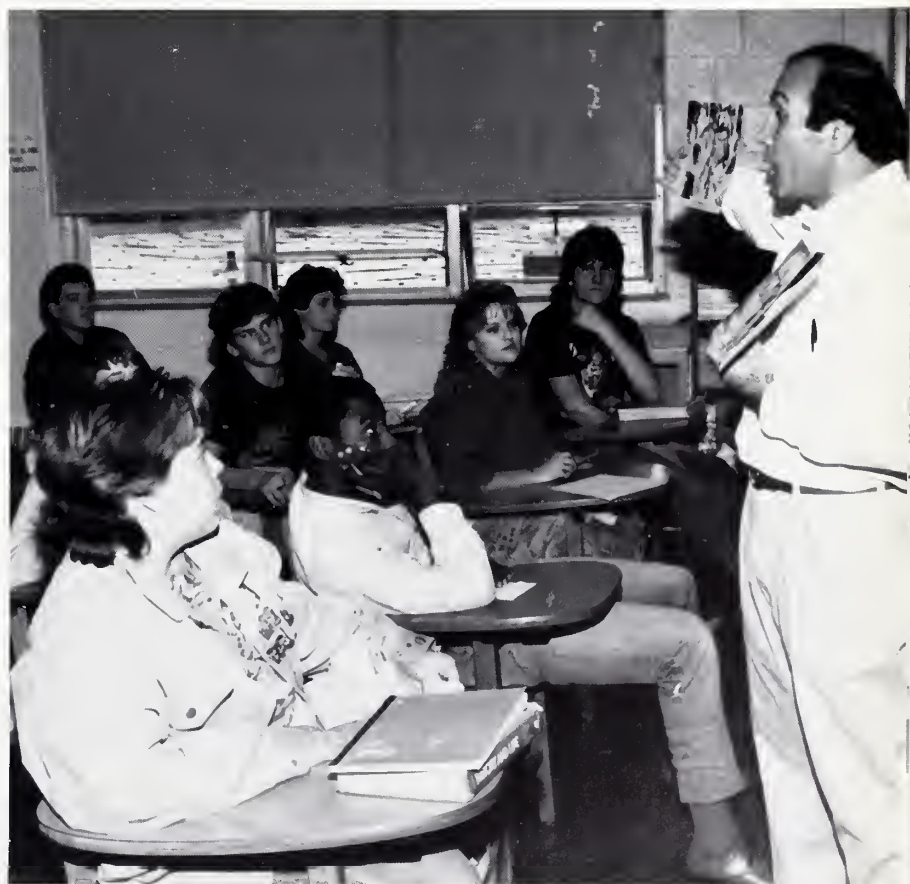

In German class junior Vince Stinnett does a conjugation on the board.

Histlish teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Dever, goes over an assignment with junior Greg Wiley as K-C McCombs waits her turn.

As part of a speech class assignment, senior Tina Hafer uses Carol McFarland as her "subject."

Social Studies teacher Mr. John Deal captures the attention of his students with visual aids.

Meeting Special Needs

Special education needs are served in a variety of ways. The activities range from classroom instruction and resource help to vocational oriented classes. These classes are titled "PVE" which stands for Pre-Vocational Education. In these classes students learn important job-related skills and also receive on-the-job experience. The department also included basic classes such as math, English, history, and science.

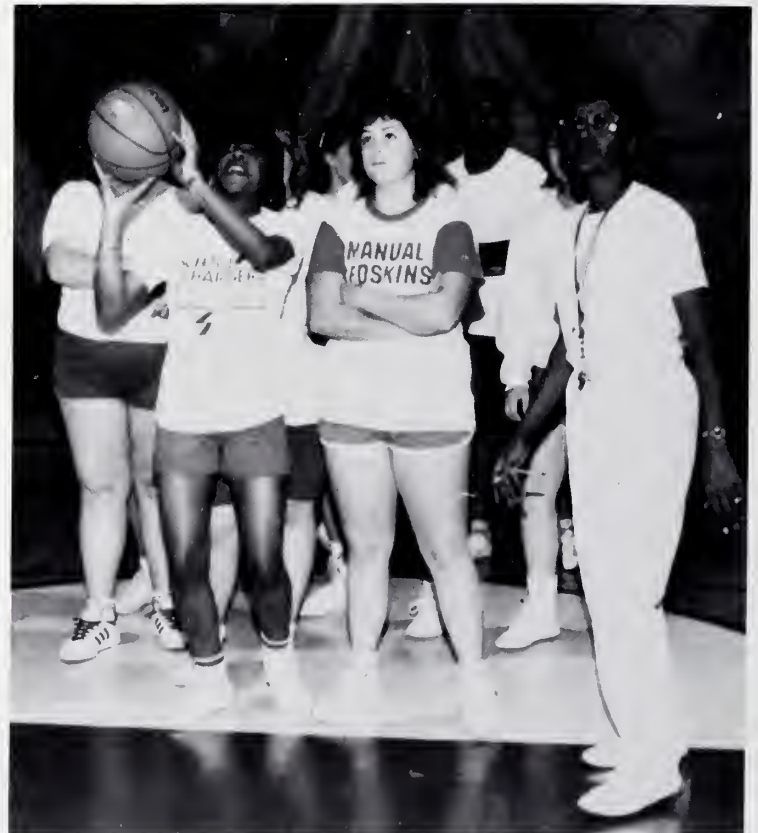

The freshman class visited Conner Prairie Village in the fall after studying about colonial America. In the spring many special education students traveled to Chicago to tour selected educational sites.

Guest speakers also visited classes during the year to share their knowledge and expertise with the students.

The Physical Education department offered required gym classes, health, advanced gym, and weight lifting. When freshmen enrolled in the required PE course, most of them thought this class would be an easy "A." When they got there, they learned the reality of the class. The required dress was red shorts, white shirt, and tennis shoes. This class was more than playing around. Advanced gym and weight lifting were very popular with the athletes. Their conditioning really paid off during the season.

Playing basketball in gym class, freshman Shannon Glover shows her dribbling ability.

During resource class, Mrs. Kay Thompson, special education teacher, gives individual help to a student.

Working with a small group, special education teacher Mrs. Karen Montgomery can more easily meet student needs.

In the weight room, senior Tom Beard bench presses while senior Chad Majors and Paul Treadwell lend some moral support.

J-ROTC

J-ROTC was an elective class for students who had an interest in the military. The classes were taught by Sgt. Bruce Blauvelt and Sgt. Thomas James.

The cadets had marching drills to master, uniforms to care for, and rules and regulations to learn. Cadets were given military ranks based on their skills and rate of progress.

In September the color guard performed duty for the IPS School Board meeting. In November the J-ROTC marched in the Veteran's Day Parade in downtown Indianapolis. Six cadet officers attended a repelling clinic at IUPUI campus.

In January cadet rangers participated in a four-day field training exercise at Hancock County Ranger Camp. The J-ROTC also presented the colors at home football and basketball games.

Math and Science

Both the math and the science departments received new department heads this year. Mr. Harold Baumer, a former math teacher, became head of the science department.

The science department offered both required classes, electives and mini-classes. Physics and chemistry were two electives for advanced students. A drug awareness class, taught as a mini-class by Ms. Kris Graham, was a class that was popular with students.

Mr. Bill Fisher became the new math department head. Also new to the math department were Mr. Richard Flis and Mrs. Patricia Shepherd.

They offered basic classes and advanced classes like geometry and trigonometry. They also offered computer math classes which introduced students to computer programming.

Performing a chain-reaction experiment with dominoes are physical science students Kenny Huggins and Melvin Stringer.

Using a protractor, sophomore Bettina Rodgers draws a colorful design in geometry class.

Developing Musical Talents

Music classes were the building blocks for the performing groups in the music department. In these classes students received instruction in the basic skills that would help them qualify for band, orchestra, or Manualaires.

Students learned correct breathing techniques, scales, notes, and discipline. There were classes for both beginning and advanced students. For many students, music classes were a welcome change of pace from their academic classes.

The music department was small. The department head was Mr. Robert Fleck, who was also the vocal director. Mrs. Marilyn Bolin directed the orchestra and she also taught vocal music. Mr. Bruce Smith was the band director, and Mrs. Kenya Ostermeier was the accompanist for the department.

During orchestra class, Darron Dillingham and Robert Benamon, sophomores, make pleasant music on the violin.

Accompanist Mrs. Kenya Ostermeier waits for a cue from vocal director Mrs. Marilyn Bolin.

In Keyboard class Cynthia Conwell, senior, and Steve Edmonds, junior, wear earphones to hear their music.

With a look of concentration on his face, Derrick Davis, junior, practices the drums in band class.

As John Daniels, sophomore, practices on the baritone, Imar Stone, sophomore, practices on the trombone.

Showing the correct form for a bass player is Terry Kennedy, sophomore.

Books and Computers

Manual has had two complete computer labs for five years. Each lab had thirty-one computers and three printers. The main office had seven IBM-PC's, including CASPER — Computer Attendance Scheduled Programing. Mrs. Janet Milenbaugh, the computer specialist, commented, "It may be a possibility that CASPER will keep each student's grades and print the report cards in the near future."

Computers, the product of modern technology, and books, the traditional source of information, both had an important place in a student's life.

Both books and computers were available for students in the Media Center. The staff worked with many classes on special projects and with individuals who came to the Media Center for special help on research or finding a book.

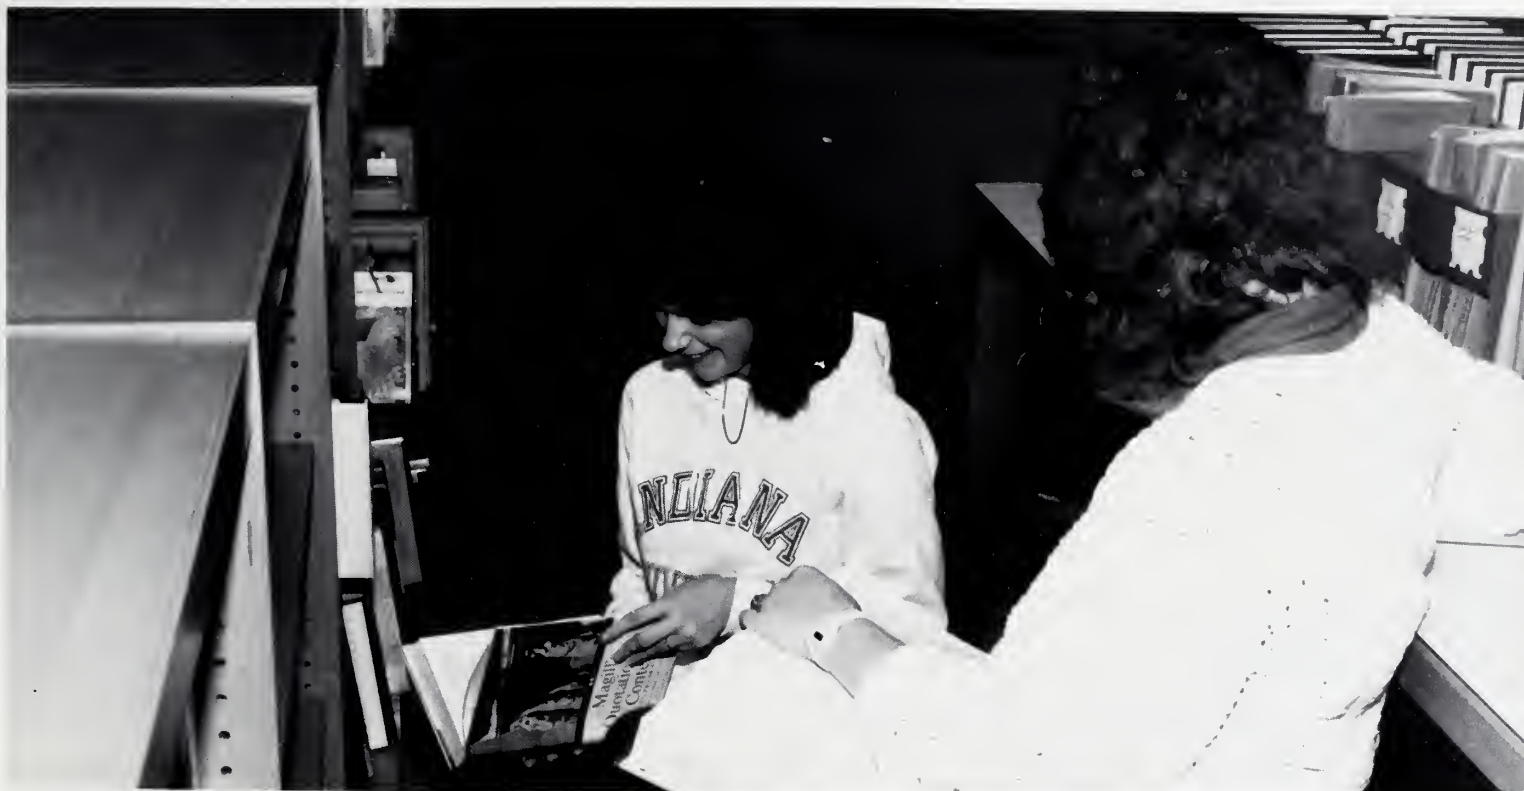

The Media Center had a new staff. Mrs. Mary Rabourn was the new Media Director; Mrs. Shirley Lynch was the new librarian, and Mrs. Trudy Waggoner continued as Media clerk. Mrs. Rabourn remarked, "The Media Center has worked on replacing old titles with new ones that students will enjoy reading."

Proving that "two heads are better than one," senior Rachel Haley helps senior Samantha Smith solve a computer problem.

Working at her own pace, freshman Molita Berryhill awaits the computer's command.

Searching for just the right materials, juniors Shari Burgett and Julie Taylor use the Media Center's reference books.

A quiet library is a good place for senior Carol McFarland to work on an assignment without distractions.

Students visiting the Media Center find the special displays to be very interesting.

Office Gives Guidance

The Guidance department consisted of four counselors and two deans. The counselors were assigned to a specific grade level. They prepared the academic schedule for each of their students.

"Counselors are responsible for the academic career and personal/social guidance for the students assigned to them. They are there to promote and encourage students to seek out and develop their skills to the optimum potential," said Mr. Jack Brown, senior counselor.

In addition to scheduling, counselors were responsible for all testing, following of graduates, and teaching classes such as S.A.T. Coaching.

The sophomore counselor, Mr. Ray Hendrick, taught S.A.T. Coaching. He explained, "It is a class to give college-bound students a chance to take S.A.T. tests. They find out what kind of questions to expect. This helps them feel more relaxed when they actually take the S.A.T."

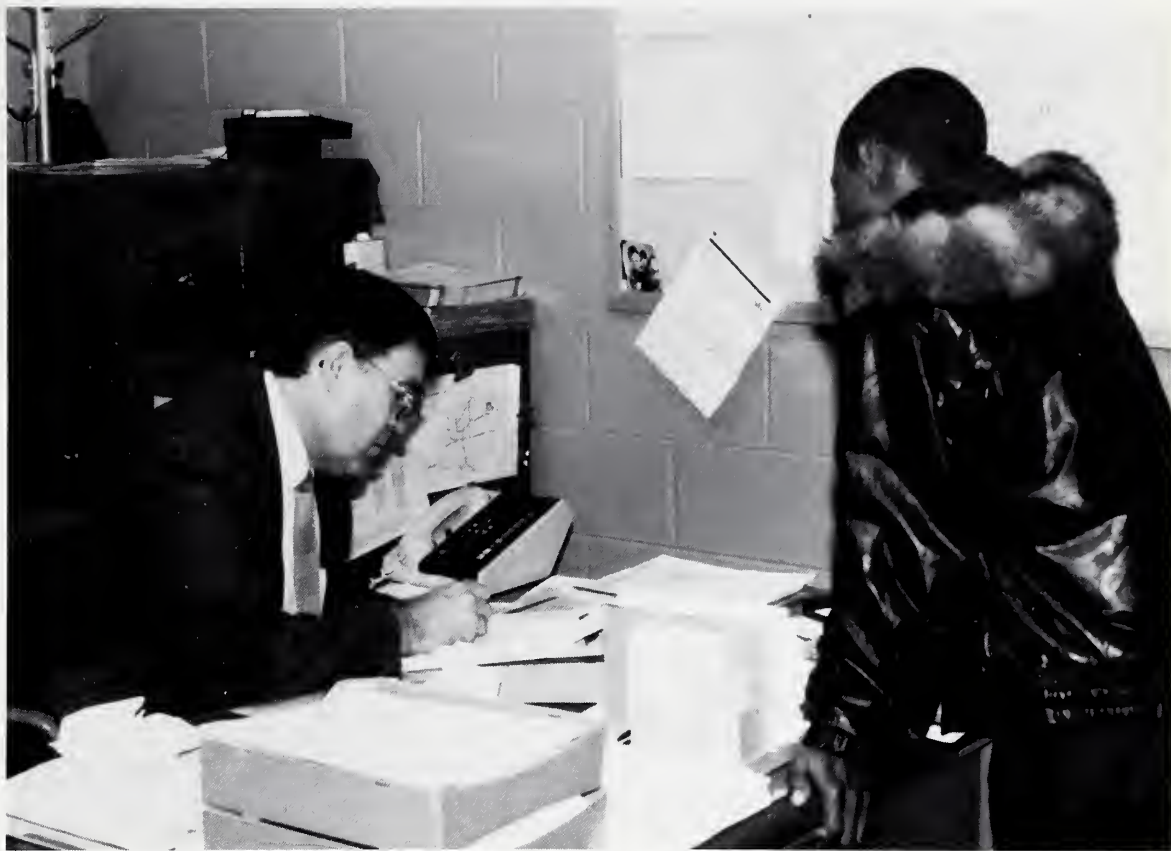

To maintain good home-school relations, Dean of Girls Miss Lou Mann confers with a parent on the phone.

Director of Guidance and senior counselor Mr. Jack Brown talks with senior Audrey Wheeler.

Busily typing one of the many reports he is responsible for is social worker Mr. Gerald Swinford.

Junior Latonya Randolph attentively listens to the advice of her counselor, Mr. Harold Bennett, regarding her schedule.

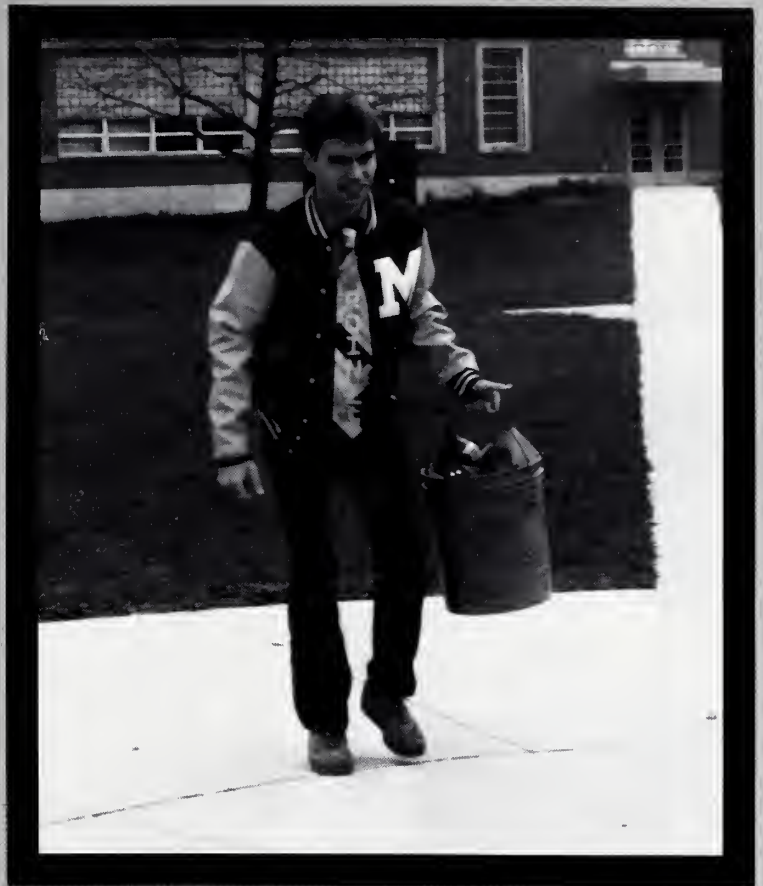

Dean of Boys Mr. Gerry Root checks his records before writing an admit for a student's absence.

School nurse Mrs. Ruth Albro adds health information to one of her official reports.

Freshman counselor Mrs. Rutha Sims takes time away from her busy counseling schedule to catch up on paper work.

Pasting up an edition of the BOOSTER are Editor Julie Taylor and Shari Burgett, juniors.

Junior Jim Saylor takes time out to browse through a school newspaper from another high school to make a comparison.

As junior Robyn Cooper types a story, junior Robin Spalding confers with advisor Mrs. Kathryn Guignard.

In order to meet a deadline, Carrie Groce, junior, types the final copy of her story.

BOOSTER Staff Produces Quality Paper

The Manual BOOSTER reflected the activities of the school year and how they affected the students and faculty at our school. Heading the staff was junior Julie Taylor, the editor. Mrs. Kathryn Guignard was the advisor.

In order to prepare for the position of editor, Julie Taylor attended the Indiana University Journalism Institute's editor's workshop during the summer. The BOOSTER was published every three weeks.

There were several changes this year. The biggest change was using a computer. Stories were typed into the computer, edited, and stored until time for publication. Using the computer was a big time saver for the staff.

In the spring, Miss Mary Ann DiBortolo, a student teacher from Indiana University, worked with the journalism class and the newspaper staff. She brought some new ideas and was really an asset to the newspaper staff.

Being on the newspaper staff was not all fun and games. The reporter's job included interviewing people for stories, writing the story, and meeting deadlines. When the paper was ready for distribution, students could look with pride at a quality publication.

Proofreading her story before turning it in is junior Amy Forey.

Showing senior Casey Kelley and freshman Renee Berry how to edit copy for paste-up is Mrs. Kathryn Guignard, advisor.

We Are Roines

Roines, a senior honorary for boys, was a group for students who excelled in academics and who were also interested in school service.

After a two-week pledge period when they were seen with their buckets and wide R-O-I-N-E-S ties, the pledges then went through final initiation.

As active Roines members they performed several school service jobs. In December, they hung the traditional Christmas wreath above the main entrance to the school.

The Roines Romp was held in January. Mr. Mike Swinford was the club sponsor, and Bob Hestand was the president.

Roines activities tie up pledges Matt Borden and Joey Burgess while other students enjoy the show.

Pledges Sean Meador and Brian Coleman display their school Roines buckets and ties, two pledge traditions.

As an active, senior Sean Meador makes a homeroom announcement for the Roines Romp.

We Are Masoma

Masoma, one of Manual's oldest clubs, was for senior girls with at least a 6.0 GPA. Eligible girls went through a two-week pledge period. Pledges dressed as babies, vegetables, fictional characters, and even rock stars.

Officers were Tina Hafer, president; Carol McFarland, vice-president; Tricia Passios, secretary; Sheryl Davis, treasurer; Karrie Kelly, historian.

The club had several service projects. They sold homecoming flowers, had a joint Christmas party with Roines, and served dinner at the Alumni Banquet.

What the girls really looked forward to was the next group of pledges in the spring.

Senior Tammy Terrell is ready to deliver some of the homecoming flowers.

Senior Crystal Grigley does her best to entertain students before school as part of her pledging.

Special Interest Clubs

The Chess Club, coached by Mr. Larry Helphinstine, had another successful year. Led by junior Derrick Brownie, the team posted wins over North Central, Howe and Plainfield. According to Mr. Helphinstine, Brownie is one of the best high school chess players in the state.

The Spanish Club was very active. Sponsored by Miss Ann Manning, they had a Christmas party with a gift exchange, and they went ice skating at the Pan Am Plaza. Several members visited the International Festival at the Convention Center to learn more about the culture of other countries.

Club officers were Dawn Huff, president; Dana Ruth, vice-president; and Amy Grider, secretary-treasurer.

The French Club was one of the largest clubs at school. They sold candy to raise money for club activities. One club activity was a party at Riley Towers.

Sports Clubs

The two organizations that were made up primarily of athletes were Block M Club and FCA. Block M was a club for any athlete who had lettered in at least one sport. This club was not a very active club, but it provided additional recognition for athletes.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes or FCA was a group for those students who had participated in sports or who were just interested in sports, but who also had a belief in God. This group met regularly throughout the school year under the direction of Mr. Ray Schultz, athletic director. Some of their activities included meeting with FCA groups from other schools. Several students attended the FCA national convention. The group's major fund raiser was LUSIFY, (Let us send it for you.), a Valentine's Day Greeting project.

These "not-so-secret" admirers, Tina Hafer, Peggy Scott, Karrie Kelly, and Sheryl Davis brave the cold to support their Redskins.

Backing the Redskins

Each week during football season, secret admirers arrived at school early to decorate the lockers of the athletes assigned to them. Balloons, crepe paper banners, and glitter were a few of the things they used to make the lockers stand out. They also brought cakes, cookies and pastries as a special treat for their football player.

Throughout the season, each secret admirer kept a scrapbook of pictures and newspaper articles about the team. At the fall sports athletic banquet, each player was presented with his scrapbook, and the identity of his admirer was made known.

The wrestlerettes showed their Redskin pride by cheering for the wrestlers. Like cheerleaders, the girls had their cheers designed especially for the wrestlers. To be a wrestlerette, each girl had to pass a test on the fundamentals of wrestling. Then they had an interview with Mrs. Molly Bishop, their sponsor.

Wearing their new red and white uniforms, the girls provided the pizzazz that encouraged each wrestler to do his best.

Work- Study Clubs

Students in the work-study groups often had little time for extra-curricular activities because of their work schedules. Work-study groups were both clubs and classes. The groups sponsored fund-raising projects and social activities. The groups also held separate banquets at the end of the school year.

Some of the groups used the funds they raised to pay for trips to contests. Several DECA students went to Chicago as a club activity with sponsor Mr. Randy Smith.

Students in ICT, sponsored by Mr. John Fox, participated in contests at Central Nine in Greenwood.

Miss Barbara Boeldt was the coordinator for COE, and Miss Sue McNiel worked with the PVE group.

Instrumental Groups Perform with Pride

The Music department had two instrumental performing groups. Under the direction of Mrs. Marilyn Bolin, the orchestra practiced daily and performed several times during the year. The week before winter break, the violin section participated in the before-school musical concerts that have become a music department tradition.

The Marching Redskins and the flag girls started their year in August at band camp. It allowed band members to get an early start on their marching program. They presented the half-time show at home football games. They also took part in two band festivals. They were in the Midwestern Marching Band Festival at Bush Stadium in September. They also attended the Southern Indiana Marching Band Festival at Charlestown, Indiana.

Marching and playing the tuba at the same time comes easy for sophomore Mike Everling.

While learning the flag routine, junior Stacie Shepherd shows her intense concentration.

During the half-time show at Homecoming, senior Tina Hafer, drum major, directs the band.

Vocal Groups Perform with Pride

Manual's music department provided three performing vocal groups — Concert Choir, Glee Club, and Manualaires.

Glee Club was an all-female group. Under the direction of Mrs. Marilyn Bolin, the girls sang at several music department concerts during the year.

They also sang carols during the Christmas season to the delight of both students and staff.

The Concert Choir was a mixed choral group directed by Mr. Robert Fleck. The choir performed both at school and for other groups in the community.

Manualaires were the busiest of the vocal groups. It was a singing and dancing group directed by Mrs. Bolin. Students had to audition before they were accepted into Manualaires. Many hours were spent learning the music and the choreography for their concert.

They had many opportunities to perform at school and throughout the community. "I enjoy Manualaires," said senior Eric McCreary. "We put in a lot of hard work, but it was worth it."

Members of Glee Club, Tonya Brown, Marsha Cloud, Tricia Passios, Sheila Leagon, and Deiona Maxieson, sing carols for the staff.

Choir members Teresa Hinds, Jason Broadstreet, Jenny Moles, Greg Wiley, Ron Winkler, and Tricia Passios sing carols around the Christmas tree.

Service Clubs Have A Busy Year

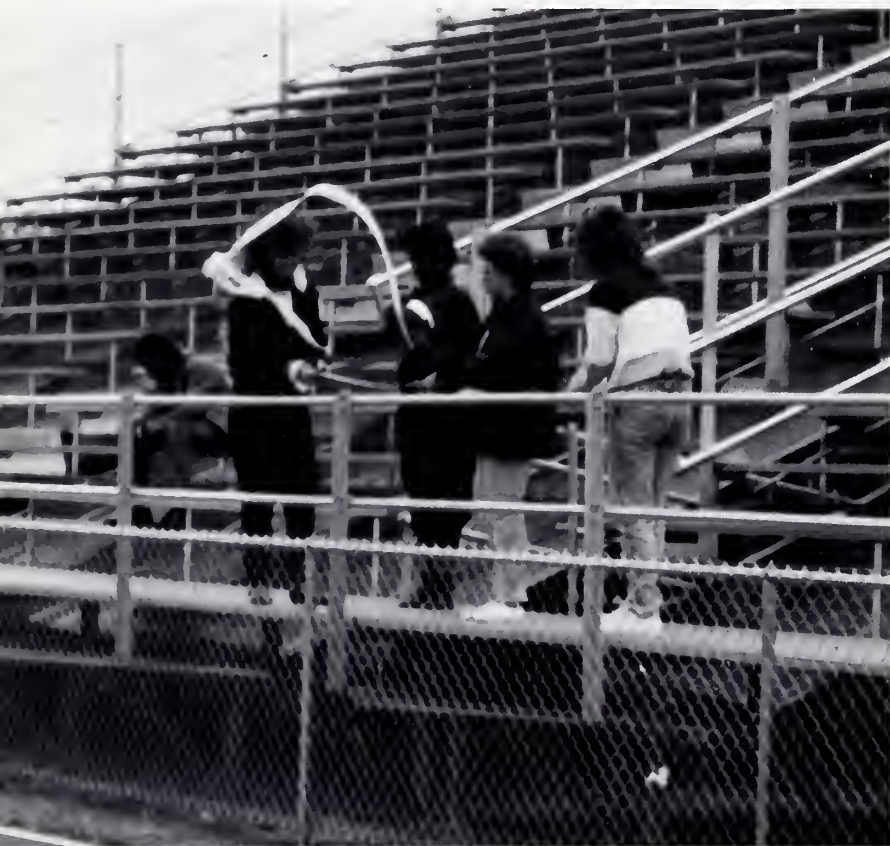

Brain Game was an academic competition of high school teams sponsored by Channel 13. Manual's team consisted of Nikie Passios, Tim Wiley, Jason Broadstreet, and Greg Wiley. Mr. Jack Weaver was the sponsor.

Student Affairs Board, SAB, was the student council. Sponsored by Mrs. Marilyn Dever and Mr. Randy Smith, they performed many service projects around school. They made a Homecoming float, assisted at Parents in Touch, distributed Christmas gifts to needy families, and sponsored Teacher Appreciation Week. In addition, they were shadowed by visiting students from I.U. They sponsored a Bingo booth at the Pow Wow.

Students Against Drunk Driving, SADD, was sponsored by Ms. Kris Graham and Mr. Gerald Swinford. They made weekly P-A announcements urging students not to drink and drive. They also visited English classes to distribute free notebooks with the SADD message on the cover.

Senior Sean Meador works to complete the SAB Homecoming float.

The World's A Stage

The Drama department, under the direction of Mr. Fred Bennett, kept active throughout the school year. Their performances included "Our Town," a three-act play presented in the fall. Next came an evening of one-act plays that were performed in February.

Both of these performances were done in snack theater style. Tables were set up on stage so that the audience was very close to the performers. The acting stage itself was smaller, but large enough for the play being presented. The audience could sip coffee or soft drinks and munch on tasty snacks provided by members of Mask and Wig and Thespians.

The major dramatic production in the spring was the annual Redskin Revue. It consisted of three student-written and student-directed one-act plays. "The Three Little Pigs" was written by graduates Brian Lakstins and Tamatha Crist. "Alice in the Briar Patch" was written by junior Lanette Dickinson. The third play was "Rumplestiltskin," written by seniors Dawn Haapala and Bryan Sholders.

Mr. Fred Bennett, coordinator of the Redskin Revue commented, "The 1987 Revue was an excellent example of student unity. In set building, directing, painting, and make-up, everyone worked hard together."

Graduates Mike Grizzle, Joe Bruce, and senior Ron Winkler are in a real tug of war.

Junior Greg Wiley puts a halt to the ride for seniors Rick Warren and Tony Grizzle.

Hiding from the wolf are Sheryl Davis, senior, Laura Mouser, 1987 graduate, and Jenny Moles, junior.

Carrie Groce, junior and Raquel Walls, sophomore, seem to be at the mercy of Troy Terry, junior.

Juniors Greg Wiley, as Dr. Gibbs, and Eddie Lyster, as Joe Crowell, share a morning greeting.

In her role as Mrs. Gibbs, sophomore Erica Burrin feeds the chickens.

As Mrs. Gibbs, sophomore Erica Burrin serves breakfast to her husband, played by Greg Wiley, junior.

Drama Groups

It was a busy year for Redskins who were involved in a variety of drama groups. They were responsible for several dramatic productions.

In the fall, "Our Town" was presented at a snack theater. In February, an evening of "Four Plays for the Heart" was presented on Valentine's Day weekend. In March, the traditional Redskin Revue gave students an opportunity to take the stage one more time.

Mask and Wig was sponsored by Mrs. Desi Elliott. Mr. Fred Bennett sponsored Thespians and Redskin Revue Committee and also directed the dramatic productions. Mr. Carl Wright was responsible for the stage crew and stage craft classes.

In a scene from "Our Town," junior Greg Wiley plays Dr. Gibbs and sophomore Tony Adams plays his son George.

Activity Groups

Special groups gave students the opportunity to learn new skills and have fun at the same time. The Art Club was open to anyone who wanted to join. This year the Art Club went to Broad Ripple Village, the Indianapolis Art League, and the Artifacts Gallery.

The A-V Club, sponsored by Mrs. Mary Rabourn, was for those students who were interested in operating projectors, laminating, and videotaping. The club was active throughout the year.

The Home Economics Club was sponsored by Mrs. Frances Benson. The club featured guest speakers, parties, and field trips.

The Key Club was primarily a service club. Sponsored by Mrs. Evans-Allen, the club had several activities, including the homecoming dance and a food drive for the needy.

Videotaping a program in the media center is A-V Club member Ron Hurt, sophomore.

Honor Clubs

The National Honor Society was an exclusive group of seniors with high academic standing. Those who met the requirements of academics, school service, and character were inducted into this prestigious club. Sponsored by Miss Barbara Boeldt, they did peer tutoring and school service projects.

Quill and Scroll was a club for juniors and seniors who had worked on a publications staff for at least one year. To be eligible for membership, students had to attain at least a B average. This group was sponsored by Mrs. Kathryn Guignard.

National Honor Society Officers: John Hatcher, treasurer; Tina Hafer, president; Sheryl Davis, secretary; Julie Gilvin, vice-president.

Deadlines, Deadlines!

"Who has the cropper?"

"What happened to my layout?"

"What do you mean 'Tomorrow's my deadline?'"

These questions were heard in the publications room on a daily basis. The production of the IVIAN was no small task. From the first day of school in September until the day the final deadline was met, the yearbook staff worked hard to capture the events of the school year.

Deadlines were not their only concern. Raising money to cover production costs was also their responsibility. The staff raised money by selling ads, personal messages, and candy.

There were advantages to being on the yearbook staff. There were no tests. Students worked in an informal, more relaxed atmosphere. When the semester ended and the finished product was distributed, the staff could look at their creation with a sense of real satisfaction.

Before writing the caption, senior Wanda Honeycutt looks over the picture carefully.

Sharing a layout seems to work for seniors Joey Burgess and Ryan Booth and junior Ervin Barron.

As junior, Tracey Shrum works on her layout, Shanna Jenkins, junior, offers a friendly tip.

IVIAN staffer Malissa Hughes, sophomore, concentrates to complete her layout before the deadline.

Sophomore Charlotte House knows that drawing a layout requires precise measuring.

Juniors Angie Graham and Jessica Kolacek find that a desk top can be a good place to work on a layout.

Reflections of

SPORTS

"We Are the Redskins!"

Cheerleading was like other sports. The girls had to be in good physical condition, practice regularly, and set a good example as a representative of the school.

Firing up the fans in the stands was the main goal of the three squads and the mascot. The freshman squad cheered at freshman football and basketball games and also attended home varsity games. The JV squad cheered at all reserve football and basketball games and at all home varsity games.

The cheerleaders also showed school spirit by decorating athletes' lockers, making banners and signs, and serving as secret admirers.

The varsity cheerleaders attended cheerleading camp at Indiana University to learn new cheers and routines.

The boostermen were athletes who helped the cheerleaders during basketball season. They formed the bases for some of the more complex routines.

The cheerleader sponsors were Mrs. Kim McFall and Mrs. Sandy Schultz.

At the Southport basketball game, juniors Deanna Long and K-C McCombs and senior Vicki Unversaw get the crowd into the game.

In spite of the chilly temperature, junior Kathy Mangus yells for the Redskins.

Wearing an authentic Indian headdress is mascot Ishida Downey, junior.

Before an enthusiastic crowd, the cheerleaders urge the players on to a victory over Ritter.

Defense Shines

The 1987 varsity football team finished the season with a record of 5-4. Perhaps the most impressive victory came at Homecoming, when they thumped No. 2 ranked Ritter 25-0. That game was controlled by the defense, which allowed only nineteen yards rushing and sixty-eight yards passing.

The defense, along with a strong running game, propelled the team to victories over Tech 24-8, at Washington 27-21, and against Brebeuf 14-7. The Redskins also recorded a victory against Perry Meridian by forfeit because Perry used an ineligible player.

Several players had outstanding performances. Senior John Hinton ran 93 yards to return the opening kickoff in the second half of the game against Broad Ripple, setting a new school record. Defensive lineman Steve Savage gained All-State and All-City honors. James Cole, Roland Terrell, Steve Cox, Brendon Saunders, and Hinton received All-City Honorable Mention.

Good pass protection by the offensive line allows junior Rich Majors plenty of time to throw the football.

With the offensive line set, quarterback Curtis McGuire counts down to take the snap from the center.

For extra yardage, Curtis McGuire tries to turn it up field.

With a victory assured, Manual players begin their celebration with high fives.

A Season of Struggles

The varsity volleyball team ended the season with a 5-13 record. Varsity coach Kate Lawrie commented that this year the team had good sophomores and they should have an exceptional season next year.

Senior Carol McFarland said, "We all worked hard and tried our best. We pulled together and played competitively against strong teams such as Roncalli and Perry Meridian." The highlight of the season was making it to the final four in the city tourney. Senior Rachel Haley summed up her four years on the team when she remarked, "I have really enjoyed playing volleyball for Manual. I have learned that I can accomplish anything if I put my mind to it. The coaches were good and they were always around when the team needed them."

The reserve team ended with a 7-7 record. Coach Karen Busch praised the team as a hard working and dedicated group of girls. They have the potential to develop into a championship team.

The freshman team, coached by Mrs. Peggy Eineman, played a limited schedule and were 1-2. Their win was against undefeated Chatard in a game that went into three matches.

Receiving a spike from the Washington opponents, sophomore Amy Bain begins Manual's defensive strategy by bumping the ball.

Taking the opposing team by surprise, senior Rachel Haley nails a spike.

Teamwork Gets Results

The boys' cross country team had a good season with the final record of 8-4. While the record indicates a successful season, the team struggled early in the year.

Veteran runner, senior Daryl Whitlow, was named MVP. "I feel that the season was great. Everybody worked hard to get the job done. Mr. Swinford is a good coach. He helped to build team morale, and without him, we couldn't have had a successful season, commented Daryl.

"The whole season was fun," added junior Tom Sumner. "It was great with Daryl Whitlow and Coach Swinford. There was a whole lot of work to be done, if we wanted to be good or think of ourselves as being good."

The girls' cross country team had a good season despite several setbacks. The team couldn't begin practice until the second week of school because of the girls' scheduling. the team ran seven meets, but never had all five girls run at once. "That means our team was 'incomplete' according to IHSAA, and thus our scores never really counted," stated Coach Sue Moore.

The team was also a young team. Three of the five girls were out for their first season. "Our attitude was good — always trying to better our own times and not worrying about how big or how good the other team was," added Coach Moore.

Maggie Huskins, sophomore, set a new school record in the City meet with a time of 17:38. With three returning runners, the team hopes for more success next year.

Senior Caroline Carver, MVP, had praise for the team effort. "I feel this year was quite an adventure. I learned a lot about being part of the team."

In good form is Caroline Carver, senior and MVP, while running in a meet against Washington.

After a grueling run, senior Daryl Whitlow tries to catch his breath while Coach Swinford keeps his eye on the other runners.

Before a meet with Washington, senior Rick Warren stretches and gets his mind set for the competition.

Intense concentration is on the face of senior Daryl Whitlow as he paces himself during a meet with Washington.

In his attempt to gain an advantage, Ben Edwards rides his opponent.

Outstretched to get leverage, senior George Tolan tries to pin his Chatard opponent.

Looking eye to eye with his opponent, senior Melion Carroll waits to move toward a takedown.

Using his body to keep his opponent's shoulder to the mat is junior Tom Summer.

As the referee checks for a pin, junior Roland Terrell applies pressure to his opponent.

A Winning Season

When wrestling season began, Coach Al Pike and his assistants Mr. John Roberts and Corey Vaughn were optimistic. There were four returning seniors and nine other wrestlers, making it an experienced team.

In November, Manual wrestled Northwest and came home with the Old Dirty Shoe Award, which had been held by Northwest the last four years.

The Redskin wrestlers did very well in the city tourney. Three reserve wrestlers finished well — Don Edwards, Montreal Harrell, and Marius Cook. There were three championships in the freshman tourney — Bob Cecil, Mark Beard, and David Johnson. There were four winners at the varsity level — Marcus Cook, Don Edwards, Marius Cook, and Keith Thacker.

The team also did well in the sectionals. Sophomore Keith Thacker was Sectional Champ in the 145 lb. class. Don Edwards came home with a second. Bob Cecil, Marcus Cook, Mark Beard, Brendon Saunders, and Mel Carroll all placed third in their respective divisions.

Tennis Ups and Downs

Prospects for a good tennis season for the girls' tennis team were bright. For the first time in several years, there were enough players to field a full team.

The girls started the season with a 5-0 win against Tech. All the girls won their matches. The girls also defeated Roncalli, Broad Ripple, and Northwest. They suffered close defeats by Seccina and Beech Grove.

With only two seniors on the team, prospects looked good for next season.

The boys' tennis team began in the fall with hopes of having a good season. However, injuries and lack of players seriously hurt the team. There were five members on the team: Robert Gray, John Hurt, Eddie Lyster, Tim Wiley, and Greg Wiley. The coach was Mr. John Hurt.

The team's record was 1-10, but seniors Hurt and Gray played well. John D. Hurt was MVP. His outstanding performance came in the city tourney. He lost in the semi-finals in a three-set match that lasted two hours and forty-five minutes.

As he returns the ball, junior Eddie Lyster uses plenty of body language.

During warm up, John Hurt, senior, chases down the ball.

With great concentration, senior Bob Gray returns the ball to his opponent.

Positioning her racket for a swift return is 1987 graduate Kim Corbett.

Sectional Runner-Up

With five returning lettermen — Ed Darden, Scott Davis, Mark West, Darrell Brown and Glenn Bundy — the Redskins looked forward to an exciting basketball season. Although the team lacked height, it had speed. West's three-point shots kept them in many games, but victories were hard to come by. The varsity team lost its first five games.

By mid-season, things began to change. The team posted victories against Crawfordsville, Gary Mann and Seecina. Meanwhile the JV and the freshman teams were playing well. The JV team reached the final four in the city tourney. The freshman team ended the season after winning most of their games.

By sectional time in March, the varsity team was playing better defense. They defeated Park Tudor in the first round and went on to defeat Decatur Central. In the final game the Redskins lost to Southport by a score of 67-62, after having led most of the way.

Junior Jim Saylor shoots over the Perry defender for a basket.

On a fast break, senior Ed Darden goes up for an easy two points.

As teammates hold off the Perry defense, senior Troy Kennedy eyes the basket.

Varsity Boys' Basketball: Row one: Larry Horne, Curtis McGuire, Troy Kennedy, Glenn Bundy, Ed Darden, Tyrone Maxey. Row two: Darrel Brown, James Cole, Rick Warren, Doug Warren, Jimmy Saylor, Mark West.

Seniors Lead Team

With five seniors on the girls' varsity basketball team, hopes were high for a tremendous season. Under Coach Tim Boykin, the girls got off to a good start. The girls boasted a 4-3 record by city tourney time. They had defeated Arlington, Washington, Howe and Beech Grove.

Outstanding player and MVP senior Rachel Haley had a very strong season. She averaged 24 points a game, shot over 50% from the field and was above 75% from the charity stripe. She was also very strong at making three-point shots.

In the city tourney, the girls soundly defeated their first opponent, Washington. However, the Lady Redskins fell to rival Roncalli in their second game. Following the tourney, the team defeated Northwest, Perry Meridian, and Cathedral.

The reserve team struggled most of the season, posting a 3-11 record. Coached by Mr. Rick Hustedt, the team made up mostly of sophomores learned much from the season, although their record didn't indicate it.

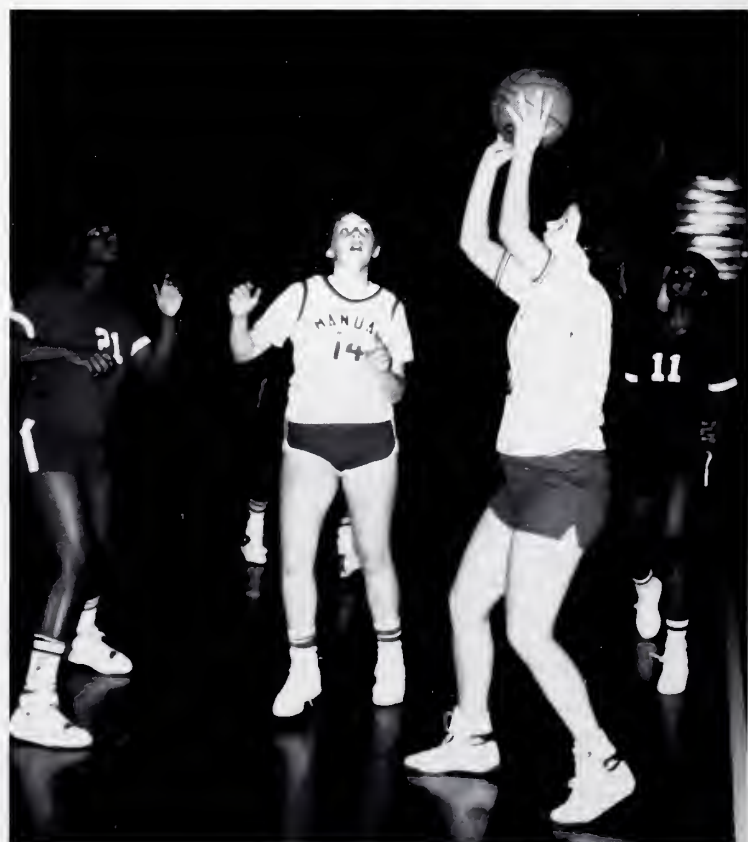

Outreaching her Northwest opponents, senior Erica Moore aims for two points.

Using her height to advantage, senior Carol Riley eyes the basket.

Showing good defensive positioning is senior Caroline Carver.

The referee signals a foul, but junior Nancy Pruett shows a look of disagreement.

Another Winning Season

The boys' track team finished with another winning season — the 33rd consecutive winning season for Coach Francis "Moe" Moriarity. This season also gave Moe his 400th career win when the team defeated Avon High School. The varsity team showed team effort and strength throughout the season. Scott Davis, John Hinton, and Darryl Whitlow helped the varsity team to an improved season.

The reserve team remained undefeated until early April. The reserve team had several outstanding performers, including James Cole, Eric Colbert, and Mohammed Abubakr. "Overall, I think we had a good season. I was especially happy when I broke the freshman record in the discus," beamed James Cole, sophomore.

By pacing himself, Eric Colbert, sophomore, takes the lead in the 400 meter relay at the Southport Invitational.

Easily clearing the hurdle, Joe Bruce, senior, stays competitive.

Teammates Curtis McGuire and Joe Bruce, seniors, turn in good times at the Southport Invitational.

In a reserve team meet, James Cole, sophomore, hands the baton to Mohammed Abubake, sophomore.

As he approaches the hurdle, Wayne Elsey, junior, used good form to make the event look easy.

Senior Scott Davis keeps his eye on the bar as he gets set to make his attempt at the high jump.

Team Gains Experience

The 1987 girls' track team was both young and inexperienced. The girls did have a great deal of talent that developed over the season. There were five returning runners and only one letterman, 1987 graduate Wanda Reaves. "With hard work, this will be a promising team in the future," stated Coach Dorothy Powell.

The team was defeated by some very strong teams. They lost to Perry Meridian, Cathedral and Roncalli early in the season. The girls came back to defeat Ritter, Washington and Northwest.

The team saw some outstanding individual efforts pay off with first place awards. They went to Maggie Huskins in the 1600m, Wanda Reaves in 400m, Marian Duncan in 100m hurdles and Tracey McGraw in the long jump.

A 400-meter relay team consisting of Michelle Jefferson, Maggie Huskins, Libby Duncan, and Tracey McGraw did well in the meet with Roncalli. Running to a first place finish was the 1600-meter relay team of Libby Duncan, Michelle Duncan, LaKina Curry, and Cynthia Hutchinson.

"The season started with a lot of beginning people, but we came out strong. Everyone worked hard and they wanted to be the best," concluded junior Beverly Day.

Showing the form she uses to throw the discus is senior Erica Moore.

Following her long jump, sophomore Maggie Huskins digs into the sand.

Members of the 400m relay team, sophomore Tracey McGraw smoothly passes the baton to Libby Duncan, sophomore.

Clearing the bar in the high jump is Wanda Reaves, 1987 graduate.

In a close contest, junior Beverly Day edges out her Howe opponent.

Team Boasts All-Stars

The 1987 baseball team was the first team since 1983 to post a winning regular season record of 12-11. The team's progress was not as rapid as the coaches had anticipated. For the past six years the team had not had a practice field or a home diamond.

Coach Bill Rosenstihl had praise for the graduating seniors for their dedication and leadership. He anticipates more dedication and positive leadership for an even better baseball season in 1988.

James Pruett, 1987 graduate, was named MVP. Four graduating seniors — Richie Leeper, Earl Claussen, Steve Burgess, and James Pruett — were selected for the Indianapolis All-Star team.

Eying the pitch, junior Mike Chitwood is ready to take a powerful cut at the ball.

After hitting the ball down the third base line, Joey Burgess, senior, leaves for first base.

To avoid being out, senior Ron Napier safely makes it back to base.

Scoring a run for the 'Skins, senior Chad Majors slides into home.

Struggles Lead to High Hopes

The girls' softball team struggled during most of the season. Under the direction of Mr. Rick Hustedt, the varsity team had a 4-11-1 record. The girls defeated Cathedral, Brebeuf, Avon, and Franklin Central.

The reserve team was coached by Mr. Mike Swinford. "The team had both a strong offense and a very enthusiastic bench that was always ready to play," commented Swinford.

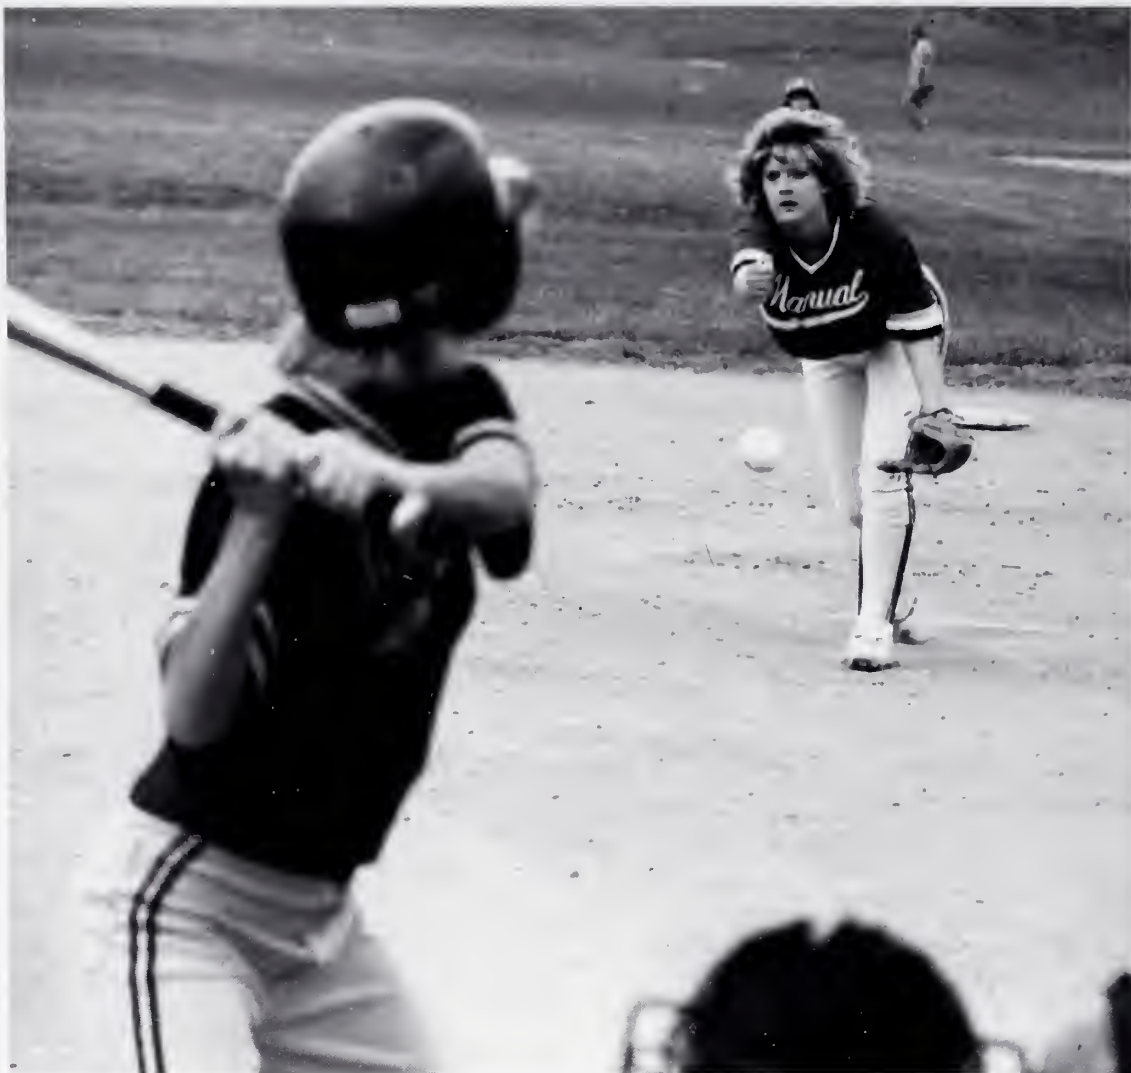

There was no MVP, but there were some good plays turned in by the varsity team. In the Cathedral game, 1987 graduate Karen Romine walked, stole second, and then stole third. Deanna Long, junior, successfully bunted and Romine slid into home to score the winning run.

Reflecting on the season, Coach Hustedt said, "With the talent of the returning varsity and the potential of the upcoming players, I feel we have the ability to be city champs."

Junior Krissy Elkins summed up the season, "I think we had a pretty good season, not on how our record stands, but on how we played when we really tried. We lost a couple of good seniors, but I think the future looks bright for our returning players."

For her Perry Meridian opponent, senior Barbara Richardson, concentrates to pitch a strike.

With plenty of time to spare, senior Lisa Pruett makes it to third base before the Perry third baseman gets the ball.

Holding a strategy conference on the mound are Barbara Richardson, Rachel Haley, Lisa Pruett, and Deanna Long.

As Nancy Pruett rounds third base, Coach Rick Hustedt waves her home.

Keeping her eye on the pitcher and her foot on the bag, senior Rachel Haley anticipates the run to second base.

Golfers Struggle

A 2-12 record may have looked like a losing season, but not to Coach Pack Craig. He found many positive things to say about the golf team. It was a young team with several freshmen. There were also two seniors on the team who had never played golf before.

The team defeated Arlington and Broad Ripple and had close contests with Northwest and Ritter. They placed eighth in the city tourney and third in the IPS tourney. "Our team just wasn't real serious. We didn't practice much, but we all played. Hopefully we'll be better next season," commented Gary Hillard, junior.

Gary Powell, sophomore, was named MVP. "Gary will be one of the best players in this area in two years," boasted Coach Craig.

Keeping his eye on the ball and concentrating on his follow-through, Robert Grey, senior, shows the form of a golfer.

To make sure he performs well, Royce Bolton, sophomore practices his putting prior to the match with Arlington.

Total concentration is shown on the face of 1987 graduate Mike Page as he begins his swing.

With a gentle touch, Gary Powell, sophomore, putts the ball on the green.

The auction at Celebration '88 features a variety of sports items for the bidders.

Athletic Director Ray Schultz confers with Booster Club President Mike Mitchell before the sports auction.

Assisted by auctioneer Mike Mascari, Colts Coach Ron Meyers offers an autographed football to the highest bidder.

Celebration '88

The third annual sports auction and chili supper was held on February 6. Dubbed "Celebration '88", the auction was one of the greatest fund raisers for the athletic department. It was organized and sponsored by the Booster Club, a group of parents and alumni whose support is vital to the school's athletic program.

The evening began with a chili supper in the cafeteria. The chili was prepared by graduate Nick Ferris, owner of Nick's Chili Parlor.

Following the chili supper, there was a silent auction in the gym. Items offered to the highest bidder included craft items, art work, and sports nostalgia. There was also a flea market booth.

The main event of the evening was the auction itself. Honored guests for the evening were Colts' Coach Ron Meyer and his wife Cindy. They brought a football signed by the Colts players. Coach Meyer also offered a dinner for four at Milano Inn with Coach Meyer and his wife and Athletic Director Ray Schultz and his wife.

Other big ticket items were a basketball signed by Purdue Coach Gene Keady, four miniature basketballs signed by IU's Coach Bob Knight, and an IU NCAA championship rug.

Football helmet lamps, assembled by the Industrial Arts Club, were popular items.

Booster Club President Mike Mitchell talks with sports reporter Kevin Madden at an auction open house organized by Athletic Director Ray Schultz.

Before the auction Nick Ferris, Manual alumnus, and Ray Schultz, athletic director, serve at the chili supper.

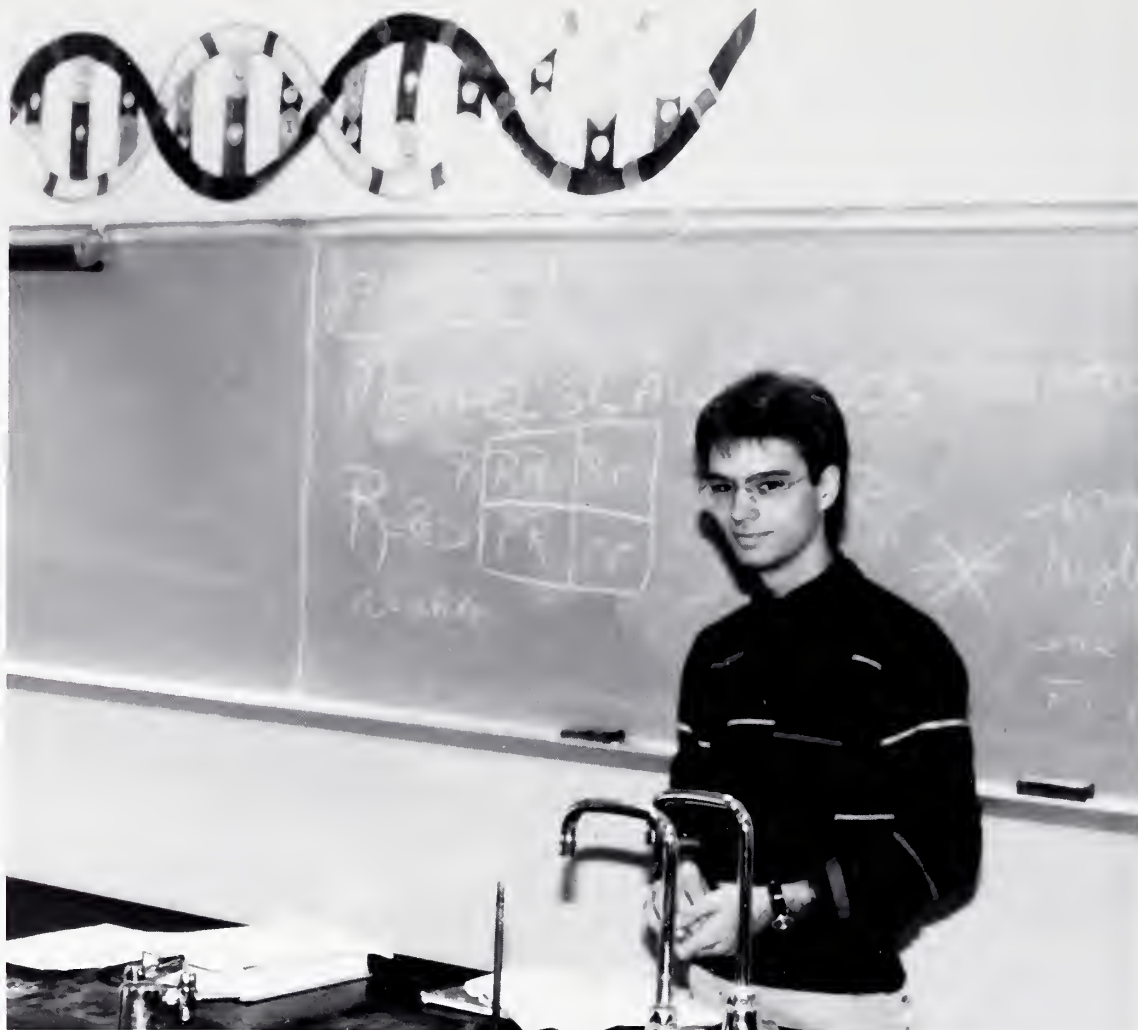

Turnabout Day

In the fall many seniors looked forward to Turnabout Day. A long-standing tradition, seniors took on the role of teacher for a day.

For one day during American Education Week, seniors sought out a teacher whose classes they could teach for one day. The students then planned the day's lessons, made up and gave quizzes, and taught classes. They even gave conferences.

The purpose of the day was to give students the opportunity to see school from a teacher's perspective. They found out how to handle different situations and problems. Turnabouts learned first hand what a teacher's day was really like.

As teacher for a day, senior Bob Hestand explains Mendel's law of segregation to a science class that was studying genetics.

Acting as principal on Turnabout Day, senior Lisa Johnson sits at Mr. Austin's desk.

On Turnabout Day, senior Scott Davis takes over Mr. Fred Belser's government class.

As Mrs. Cook's turnabout, senior James Newson answers questions about a typing assignment.

As Dean of Boys for the day, senior Darin Fishburn writes an admit for a student.

Discussing a story with Mr. Jack Weaver's English class is senior turnabout Eric McCreary.

After a busy day as Dean of Girls, senior Tammy Jeffers catches up on paper-work.

FOR SENIORS ONLY

By the time seniors were ready for graduation, they had accumulated a storehouse of memories of their four years of high school. Seniors reflected on those special moments they remembered well, but would rather not experience again. Those haunting memories included such embarrassing times as going into the wrong classroom, going into the wrong restroom, dropping a tray of food in the cafeteria, falling up or down the stairs, or dropping books in the hallway and being called "Freshie." Those incidents do not represent the best part of high school, but the haunting memory of those embarrassing times will linger in the minds of the Class of '88 for years to come.

Unforgettable EMBARRASSING Moments

"After a basketball game my freshman year, I was leaving the bleachers. As I reached the last row, I tripped and fell on the floor." — Patrick Evans

"During band practice, I was walking backwards on the 50-yard line directing. Mr. Smith got down on hands and knees behind me. Not noticing him, I tripped over him and fell flat in front of the entire band." — Tina Hafer

"When I signed up for English VIIg, and the teacher was Mr. Jackson." — Mel Carroll

"I walked into a senior class when I was going to the computer lab. I was laughed at, and I couldn't find the computer room. I walked into two other rooms that weren't right either. When I finally found the right room, it was too late and the bell was about to ring." — Tammy Benedick

"During my sophomore year, I had some very slick shoes. I fell three times in one day, including up the steps." — Sheryl Davis

"When we had to give a debate in Mr. Jackson's English class, I was terrified to death." — Kris Gossett

"Losing against Howe in volleyball sectionals, knowing that my Manual volleyball career was over and missing my friends and coaches." — Rachel Haley

"When I twisted my knee in the upstairs gym, I thought I would never play sports again." — James "Speedy" Shelton

"During Roines pledging, I had to go down the hall, barking like a dog on all fours." — Kenny Jones

"Getting put in GLC for the first time — my senior year." — Jennifer Awbrey

"My freshman year I was walking up the stairs, and my foot slipped on some melted snow. I fell down a couple of steps. My books went everywhere and everybody yelled "Freshie." — Angie Killmon

"The first day of school my freshman year, I came out the building and there were people everywhere, and I was lost. I saw a long line of buses and I didn't know which one was mine. I just picked one and ended up going the wrong way home. I made it home at 7 o'clock." — Willie White

"When I was a freshman cheerleader, I collided with my best friend while saying hello to the other school. I couldn't stop laughing. I had an accident down my leg." — Kristie Schwert

"The fun times at Noble Romans after the football games" — Kevin Augustin

"Getting off the school bus and sliding under the bus on some ice while the whole bus was laughing.” — Valerie Lewis

“Having to explain the story of my English book floating down the creek.” — Kevin Augustin

“The first day of school my junior year, I accidentally went into the boys’ restroom. Luckily, no one was doing anything that I would be embarrassed about later. Nobody knew about this accident until now.” — Dawn Kleppen

“Having a nickname of ‘McFruity’ and having people yell it out loud when they walked down the hall.” — Carol McFarland

“Playing Scecina in tennis my sophomore year, I went up for an overhead shot, and my racket slipped out of my hand and broke on the court.” — Joey Howard

“Standing up and walking to the front of the stage my freshman year to receive an award when I was just supposed to stand. The whole school laughed and I was pretty embarrassed.” — Chuck Dietz

“On the first day of my sophomore year, I woke up late and did not have time to put in my contacts. I walked into the wrong room and sat down. The room was an all senior class. The teacher took roll and I wasn’t on the list. I was embarrassed every time I saw one of those seniors.” — Tina Schwert

“Walking down the hall by the gym and falling down — head first — into the wall” — Barbara Richardson

“At a varsity football game, I got so excited when Tony Owens made a touchdown, I fell backwards off the top of the metal bleachers and landed on the ground unhurt. I have never sat on the top row since.” — Dean Burtner

“When I was walking down the main stairs, my books slipped out of my hands and fell down in between the rail. They fell from the third floor to the first floor.” — George Tolan

“Running for the bus in the rain and falling.” — Lauretha Fuller

During our sophomore year, six of us girls got caught cutting lunch and going to Pizza Hut.

— Missy Light

“One time I was late for English class. I was running up the steps, and I tripped on a step and slid back down.” — Michelle Duffy

“Losing the sectional football game against Southport” — Everett Blackmon

“When I was going down the stairs rather quickly and lost my footing and shot into a door” — Jimmy Newson

“During a Manualaires Christmas concert, I tripped over a piece of loose carpet on the auditorium stage and my shoe fell off.” — Peggy Scott

Good Times

Seniors also took with them some very fond memories. There were awards and honors and accomplishments in the classroom and on a variety of athletic teams or in extra-curricular activities. Those special friends and fun times will not soon be forgotten.

“Passing Spanish 6 with a “B” when I was sure I would get a much lower grade” — Valerie Lewis

“Hearing my name being called as the 1987 Homecoming Queen” — Kristie Schwert

“Finding the right way back home” — Willie White

“Receiving fourteen homecoming mums in my sophomore year” — Angie Killmon

“Getting my first “A” from Mr. Tstead” — Jennifer Awbrey

“Getting in the same government class as Steve Cox” — Helen Taylor

“Starting varsity football my sophomore year and playing varsity sports ever since” — James Shelton

“Scoring 33 points against Perry Meridian and Ritter in the same week my junior year” — Rachel Haley

“Getting an “A” on my debate in Mr. Jackson’s class” — Kris Gossett

“Receiving six carnations from my boyfriend, James” — Sheryl Davis

“Being chosen to play both varsity and reserved softball when I was a freshman” — Tammy Benedict

“Passing physics when I was positive I was getting an “F” from Terrible “B” or Mr. Baumer” — Melion Carroll

“Performing in Redskin Revue acts” — Tina Hafer

“Making the honor roll three times in a row” — Patrick Evans

“Surviving Histlish!” — Carol McFarland

“Being named MVP on the golf team my sophomore year” — Joey Howard

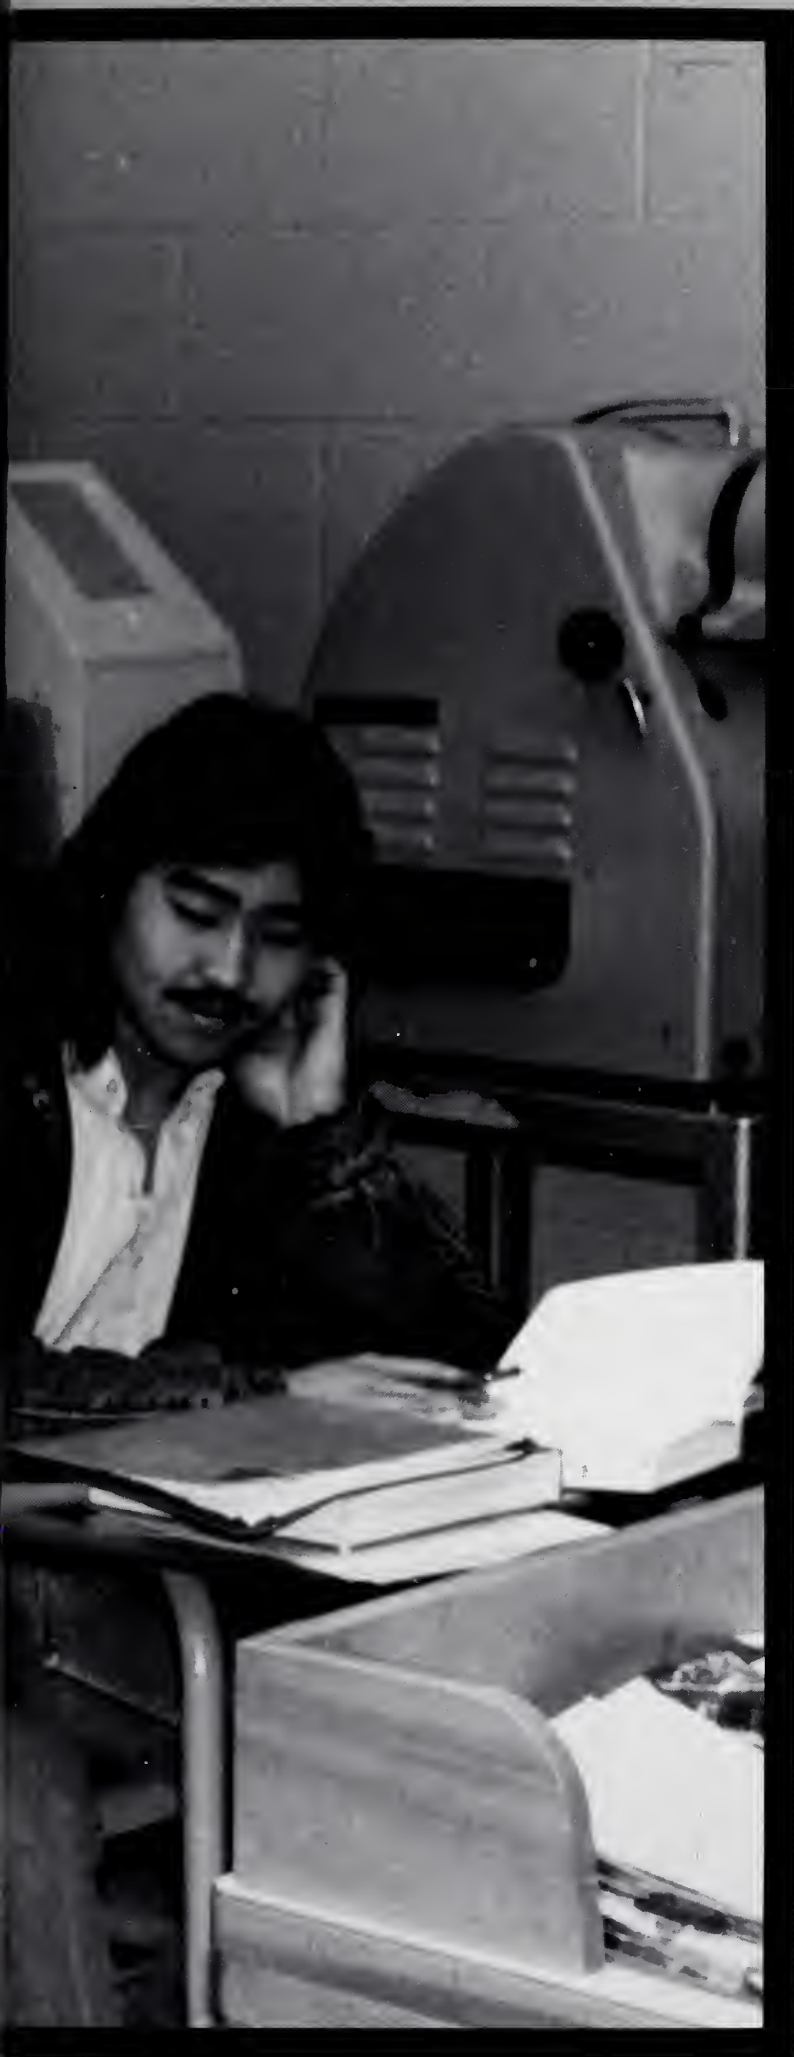

“Dancing, talking, and listening to music in Noble Romans’ parking lot after a football game” — Kenny Jones

“Winning best comedian in a one-act play” — Chuck Dietz

“Being in Dr. Hignite’s class and thinking I didn’t know what I was doing, but getting an ‘A’ ” — David Miller

“Thinking I wasn’t prepared for the English debate, but getting an ‘A’ ” — Dawn Kleppen

Juniors Stay Active During the Year

Most juniors returned to school in the fall with a feeling of anticipation. There were many things to look forward to in their junior year. They could elect class officers for the first time, dress up on Junior Day, dress down on Senior Day, and go to their own Junior Prom.

In October, juniors elected their officers for the year. They were Deanna Long, president; Kelly Williams, vice-president; Amy Grider, secretary; Kim Phelps, treasurer. Several class meetings were held so that all juniors could be in on planning the year's activities. Mr. Willard Henderson was the sponsor of the class.

The Histlish class, made up entirely of juniors, buried a time capsule as a class project. Under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Dever, the class assembled memorabilia from the 1980's. They planned to dig up the capsule at their twenty-fifth class reunion.

One of the big days for juniors was the annual Junior Recognition Day on March 16. This was the day juniors dressed up in their best clothes. At the end of the day, the Top Ten Juniors were announced. Following the class meeting, there was a party for juniors in the cafeteria.

The highlight of the year was the Junior Prom. It was held on May 14th at the Sherwood

Club. The prom colors were rose and wine, and the theme was "The Time of My Life."

In the spring, juniors with high academic standing were accepted for membership in the three honor organizations: Roines, Masoma, and National Honor Society.

Most juniors shared one idea about being juniors. "The best part of being a junior is almost being a senior!"

Sophomores Look Toward the Future

The sophomore class of 1987-88 made changes and planned for their future. Some of the sophomores spent much of their time with their homework, or they were involved in class projects. Many of the sophomores spent time after school getting involved with the Redskin Revue, a variety of clubs and school-related activities, sports, and cheering for their team, the Redskins.

The most popular activity after school was spending time with friends and going to the mall. Several sophomores took the PSAT for college. Sophomore Nicole Tibbits remarked, "I have made big plans for my future, and I hope to attend college as soon as I graduate."

Sophomore Charlotte House commented, "I really feel like it's time to settle down and decide on what I'm going to do in the future, and do it before it's too late."

Working and learning how to drive and getting a driver's license were also popular for sophomores. They really seemed to become more comfortable with their school.

Freshmen Adapt to New School and New Ways

Fear, anticipation, excitement, and confusion were a few of the emotions that most freshmen felt during the fall. Going to high school was a big step for most of them.

After six years in grade school and two years in junior high, it finally happened — high school. Being a freshman was an exciting experience, but it was also one of the most frightening. "Even though I had some good sisterly advice about what to do and what not to do, I was still scared about the same things most freshmen are afraid they'll do, like walking into the wrong room filled with upperclassmen or dropping my books in the hallway," confided freshman Renee Berry.

Going to high school for the first time was also the start of a whole new social life. There were sports to participate in, clubs to join, and numerous activities to take part in. There was the first Spirit Week and the excitement of the first Homecoming. Freshmen were singled out and treated as guests at a football game in the fall to help them feel that they were really a part of the school, and to help them start building their Redskin pride.

Tonya Beck expressed the way most freshmen felt by the end of their first year of high school. "It wasn't as hard as I thought it would be. My classes were interesting and the teachers were helpful," she said.

"Yes," boasted Tunisia Stanfield, "we survived our first year and the Class of 1991 will be back in September, looking forward to being the upperclassmen next year!"

Teachers receive New Assignments

When school started in September, many staff changes were evident. Seventeen new teachers were welcomed, and they quickly adapted to their new assignment. Mrs. Barbara Rice, English teacher, came to Manual from a junior high school. "I looked forward to coming to Manual," she said. "High school is such a welcome change from junior high."

Several staff members received new assignments. Mrs. Mary Rabourn became Media Center Head; Mr. Harold Baumer, Science Head; and Mrs. Marilyn Bolin, Music Head. Other new department heads included Mr. Bill Fisher, Math; Mr. Dwight Shaw, Social Studies; Mrs. Kay Clay, Art; and Mrs. Janet Weaver, Business.

Mr. Ligon Drane came to Manual from Howe High School to be new vice-principal.

During the school year, several teachers received special recognition. Mr. Harold Baumer received a grant from National Starch for a laser project in physics. Mrs. Sarah Bogard, home economics, was named IPS Teacher of the Year.

Proud to be principal, Mr. Eugene Austin is always available to students, parents, and staff.

Acknowledgements

Just as a mirror reflects the image before it, so this IVIAN reflects the 1987-88 school year at Manual. With words and pictures, we have tried to accurately reflect our school, our activities, our friends, our world, and ourselves.

We offer our thanks to those who helped us produce this book: Mr. Larry Glaze, our Herff-Jones representative; Root Photographers, our official senior photographer; Mr. Dick Dickus, for candid and sports pictures; Mr. John Higgins and Inter-State Studios, our underclass photographer.

We also thank Mr. John Hurt and Mr. Bob McFall for taking pictures for us, sometimes on short notice.

We especially express our thanks to the teachers for being so patient on underclass and club picture days.

Finally, we thank the faculty, staff, administration and students for supplying the information for this book.
